Spirits Low, Teachers Strike

As the school year opened students spirits seemed to be at a all time low. Under the difficult circumstances of a teachers strike school was chaotic and students found teacherless classrooms or unknown substitutes.

The opening day of school found teachers on the picket lines after long and drawn out negotiations between teachers and schoolboard had failed. As many as 57 substitute teachers were called to fill in for the striking teachers. The striking teachers were asking for a increase in pay and better benefits. According to Mr. Wally Fitch, strike leader, the school board initially offered the teachers 2.5% increase in wages while the cost of living had gone up 6.4%. After 8 days of talks teachers settled for a 5.2% increase in pay.

While teachers picketed outside the students inside were faced with many new experiences. Many students felt strange and bewildered having to cross picket lines to enter the school building. Some students felt it was a waste of time even to come to school. Seniors were concerned whether or not the school days would count, all Seniors wanted to graduate on the planned date of June 1.

Many students felt the substitute teachers weren't qualified to teach the subject they were assigned to here at HHS. The substitutes really couldn't take accurate roll so many students didn't even show up until the strike was over. Another problem that upset students was the policy that no students could drop a class until after the strike was settled. Even though school was in session students frequently complained that school seemed so unorganized and disruptive that many students and even teachers had mixed feelings about the entire situation.

Another problem that plagued the opening of the school year was the ISHAA (Indiana High School Athletic Association) probation. Principal Leonard Austin, received a letter that Highland was on athletic probation until September 1, 1978. This was Highland's first ISHAA probation. The reasons for probation were released as follows 1. A student's transfer was made without a corresponding change of residence by parents 2. The transfer was made for athletic reasons 3. The co-guardians were named for reasons of athletic eligibility. The final charge was undue influence. The entire situation revolved around a Senior student who moved to Madison County. His guardianship was legally changed from his mother to friends of the family.

Both the strike and probation resulted in a low negative feeling among students and faculty. But with time, spirits lifted, problems were overcome and the year seemed to begin again with a hopeful, fresh, new look to the future.

The New and Old Enhance Highs

As the school year finally got underway Highland was faced with many new and unique experiences. The enrollment had increased from 1500 to 1700. Hallways were more crowded than ever, and students felt frustrated and irritated trying to get from class to class in the new allotted time of 5 minutes compared to the 7 minutes allowed the previous year.

The busing districts were not changed this year but more black and white students rode the bus. Highland had 32 buses that picked up and unloaded students daily. The only complaint made by students was that buses were somewhat overcrowded. But many of these problems were relieved when the upper grade students start driving to school.

A new time schedule was put into effect following the strike. School began at 7:30 instead of the usual 7:55. Many students found it quite difficult and tiresome to arrive at school a half hour earlier. The new program was put into effect so the grade students could have a longer school day due to time missed last year because of the snow days. Also the extra-curricular activities could start earlier. The only complaint that could be made by students concerned the idea of having to get up earlier.

Through these changes HHS was met with new programs and crowding problems that will be eliminated through the construction of a new building. The construction of the addition got underway in January and will continue into the next school year. The new construction will include ten classrooms, a library, gymnasium, physical education facilities, pool, and tennis courts. The new project will cost approximately five million dollars and was approved by the school board early in 77-78.

Throughout all these changes, highs and lows were common among students. The construction helped students look with optimism toward future changes and the low feelings over early morning hours and long bus rides were overcome through "high hopes" for next year.

Spirits High On Highland

To keep spirits high and alive, students frequently indulged in school activities and sports. Many parents and students from other schools committed that HHS students had 'high spirits' when it came to all sports. Highland through past years had become known for their great and unending spirit.

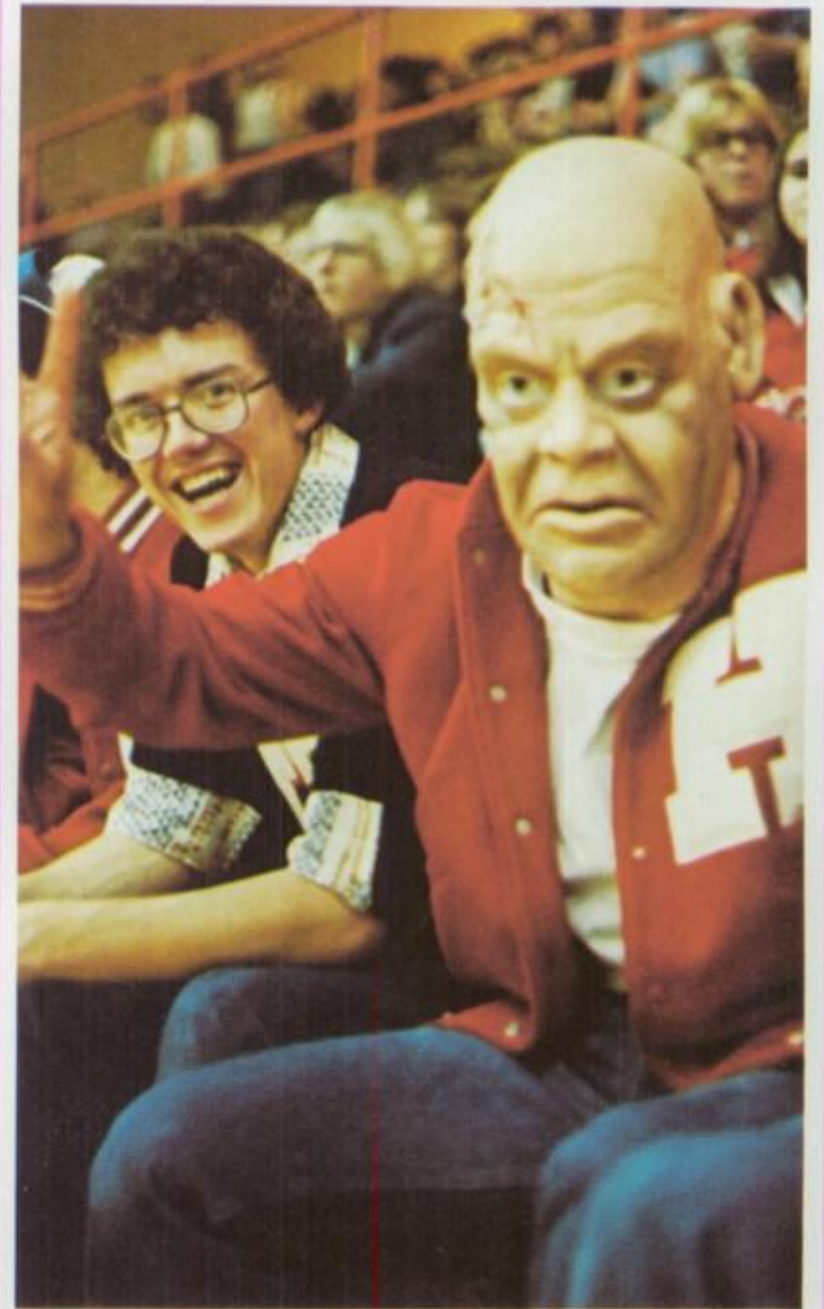

Highland sports events were very successful when it came to larger turn-outs and overwhelming team spirit. Some coaches committed they were pleased with the results of their season. More teams than ever wound up the year with a winning record proving individual effort and determination. Many school records were tied and broken.

Highland entered a new athletic conference this year entitled 'Classic Six'. The purpose of entering the new conference was to establish Highland as a well known school throughout the state. In this new conference Highland played several larger schools.

Besides having sports events, Highland also had several clubs that kept student events moving constantly. The purpose of extracurricular organizations is to bring together interested students to work as a team. Many students committed that clubs broke the monotony of the school routine. This year Highland added two new clubs, Travel Club for any student who was interested in and willing to work for trips overseas and Art Club which offered art students a fresh bent for talent and sharing ideas. Both have been successful in membership and projects.

"Highland is the 'ideal' school."

"Highland is a great place for a student because of its atmosphere for understanding and friendship."

"For some students, the main thing in school is to study and make their grades. For me it is different. I came here not just to learn facts, but to learn something about a nation and its people. Highland is giving me a splendid opportunity to do so."

Life as a Highlander

There was a lot of confusion at Highland as some 501 new students were added to our family. Along with freshman straying the halls in hope to find lockers and classrooms; four foreign exchange students were experiencing fears of a new country, school system, and new adventures. Hopefully they enjoyed the experience of being a student at Highland.

To fill the flying lives of Highland's many students; convos, dances, and plays were presented by and for the students.

Memories and Ice Cream Shared

Memories, autographs, ice cream and music presented by the H.H.S. band were all part of the annual Ice Cream Social Day held August 28. The Highland band played an important role in the activities of the day. Mr. Parshall, the new band director, stated, "I thought they had a very good response and all the comments about the day were positive." Mr. Parshall was not the only unfamiliar face among Highland's faculty, Mr. Gilliland, the new assistant band director along with the majorette choreographer, Mrs. Sara Withrow made their first appearances. The band performed arrangements they had been taught during the summer at band camp.

Alumni and returning students arrived to receive their Nineteen Seventy-seven Highlander. Approximately 600 yearbooks were distributed during the day. This annual event was also the beginning of a new experience for this year's new yearbook staff members. Mrs. Joan Duc, yearbook sponsor, commented, "The new staff worked beautifully together and started the new year with an optimistic enthusiastic attitude."

Attaining Scottish Blood

Walking down the hall, the bell rings—you take off at full speed towards your class, or mosey along figuring you are already late . . . confused looks appear on the faces of students from foreign places. In their home countries there are no bell systems because the students stay in one room with the teachers doing the rotating. They were given no choice of subjects in their homelands. Each also had close to eleven classes, alternating subjects every other day.

Four students came to Highland this year as a result of Youth for Understanding, a student exchange organization: Daniel Bautisa from the Philippines, Gustavo (Toby) Caballero, his homeland is Paraguay, Peter (per) Bjerre from Denmark and Reitze Yanhetmeer from the Netherlands.

Each was impressed with the abundance in our country, the land of plenty. Daniel said he sensed the equality among the American people. All found American food pleasing to their taste buds. The great number of cars amazed them. According to the foreign exchange students, American made cars are inexpensive. Could they be referring to the great assortment of "cheap" cars in Highland's parking lot?

What does Toby like best in America—the girls. When asked if the girls in the United States behaved any differently from those in Paraguay, Toby smiled, "No, not really, I just like girls."

As the year continued, each attained a touch of "Scottish" blood. They became involved in everything from Cross Country to Highland publications, and attended football games to parties . . . gathering memories. In the back of his mind, each toyed with the question, "If I did not have to return to my native country, would I?"

New Insights Gained During Open House

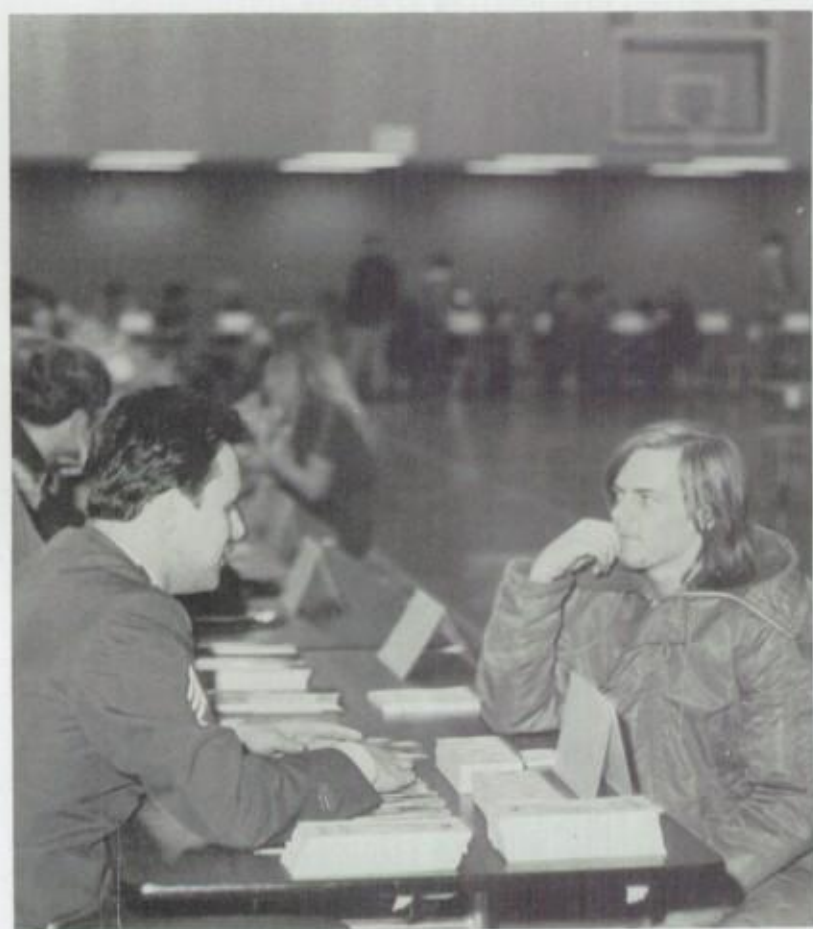

Highland High School staff and administrators rolled out the welcome mats to parents and students Nov. 15. From 6:00 through 8:00 parents and teachers had a chance to meet and discuss student's academics at the annual Open House.

An Educational Guidance Center on colleges and careers was available for students to ask any questions about a career or education.

Mrs. Betty McCarty, in charge of the evening, stated, "I believe going in and informing, during the English classes about the "careers" of Open House was superb."

Homecoming Spirit Soars

The air was crisp, cool and filled with excitement during Homecoming. October 14, despite a good fight, the Scots were defeated 20-13 by the Pendelton Heights Arabians.

Coach Dave Edwards was very proud of the team, offense and defense alike. Senior Bob Jackson, offensive end, stated, "the team's spirit was the highest ever and as far as we are concerned we won the game."

"We scared 'em and kept 'em on their toes," replied a Scot fan. Perhaps that explains the abundance of spirit after the game, though the scoreboard proclaimed the other team victorious.

Prior to homecoming activities, the second annual Powder Puff game was held. Under cloudy skies, the class of 78 was again victorious, defeating the juniors, 28-7. The senior girls also downed the 77 seniors the past year. Senior team member Lukie Newby summed it up, "What can I say ... the class of 78 is the best."

Spacey Homecoming Experienced

When homecoming activities began it was anticipated that the junior class would not have a float due to insufficient funds. Could it be the gods of distant planets smiled on the class of 79? Their float "Our Mission is to Seek and Destroy the Arabians" received first place. Senior's "Unseat Foul Opponent" earned second place honors, with the freshmen's "Touchdown for a Victory" tackling third and sophomore's "One Small Step for the Arabians, One Giant Leap for the Scots" coming in last in float competition. The movie "Star Wars" inspired the theme "Far Out Homecoming."

Wendy Kuchler escorted by Ted Mitchell reigned as queen over the homecoming court. Her attendants were seniors Rose Cornwell escorted by Mark Browning, Wendy Moore escorted by Steve Smith, and Teresa Fowler escorted by her brother Tim. Class princesses were junior Cindy Bradford escorted by Joe Lawler, sophomore Robin Johnson escorted by Mike Hamm, and freshman Lisa Fowler escorted by Kevin Carr.

Despite the homecoming defeat an epidemic of "boogie fever" spread among Highlanders after the game. Students and faculty alike danced to the sounds of "Bandit". Student Council sponsored the dance and expected to make close to 250 dollars as opposed to the over 500 dollar profit collected.

Mr. Albert Miller, student council advisor replied, "I'd never seen anything like it, they were coming in and paying for tickets up until the last twenty minutes."

Are Highland Pep Sessions a Put On?

It was quoted in the Anderson Herald Newspaper a couple of years ago, "If the Scots are for real so are their supporters." So in the school year of 1977-78, we ask ourselves, where are the Highland supporters at the school pep sessions? If you look around, you will see the students are there at the pep sessions, but spirit is not with many of them.

A pep session committee was organized consisting of sponsors and presidents of organizations, such as, student council, band, cheerblock, cheerleaders, and the coach of the season. When Ms. Stephanie Richardson, cheerblock sponsor was asked if she thought Highland's spirit at pep sessions has fallen in the past year, her comment was, "Yes, there is not enough participation, and organization." She also commented that one reason for lack of spirit was, "Anytime you have a really good season as the one in 1976, your spirit will naturally fall." Mrs. Cheryl Fuller, sponsor of the cheerleaders agreed by saying, "Spirit kind of goes on how well your team is doing." Mrs. Fuller also commented, "You can't make the kids react, they expect to be entertained at pep sessions, and the kids think the cheerleaders should be the ones to fire up the student body, when it should be the students wanting to go in the gym to fire up the team." The committee is hoping next year to get with the football coach, Mr. Dave Edwards, and plan some pep sessions for the football season.

Pep sessions are meant to build up momentum in the team members. Senior, Gary Lawrence, a varsity basketball player said, "Pep sessions really only helps a player before a game, because once the game starts, you don't think about anything, but the game." He also mentioned, "This year's team has been through alot, but the spirit at Highland is not at bottom level."

So what is it going to take to bring Highland's student body spirit back to a higher level? Another number-one ranked basketball team?

In the eyes of the Highlanders . . .

Do you make spirit at pep sessions?

"Some, usually the people I sit with don't yell all of the time, so I don't yell much."

"Yes, to show my school spirit and if I just sit there, I'm bored."

"I yell when I know the yells most of them I don't know. I don't participate in skits mostly because none of our teachers want to get involved or they say it takes up school and class time."

"Yes, because I feel the teams need the support and I want to support them."

"Some, it all depends who we are playing."

"Yes, because I'm a senior and it's the last chance I have to really be involved in sports."

"Some, I'm not an enthusiastic person."

Do you think Pep sessions could be improved, if so how would you do it?

"Yes, I think they could if everyone would try to participate instead of trying to be cool."

"We need to learn words to our school song."

"Yes, I would try to motivate the black student body into getting in the act of supporting our teams."

"Yes, getting everybody involved."

"Get rid of the people who just sit there."

"Yes, I think they could if everyone would try to participate instead of trying to be cool and show people they don't have to help, but then those people are the ones that gripe about how bad they are."

"Have better skits and have the team get involved, rather than having them sit there like bumps on a log."

Do you Enjoy pep sessions, and look forward to them, or just enjoy getting out of class?

"I like the pep sessions, because it brings the people a little closer together."

"Yes, but sometimes I would just rather stay in class."

"No, I dread them."

"Well anybody would enjoy a chance to out of class, and I like the idea myself, but for me, I enjoy them if everybody gets into them and shows some spirit."

"A little of both, its according what the pep session is about."

Should Highland have more pep sessions for other sports, or just for basketball?

"We need them for other sports too, it's not fair for one team to get more support than another."

"I feel we should have them for the Reserve team as well as Varsity basketball players, because they work as hard as Varsity does but gets no credit."

"I think if a team goes to the sectional championship, or is in , the regional, they should have something for them."

"Well look at our football team, (it will explain itself.)"

"I think they should have them for all sports, but the thing is, will people yell and participate in them? Because basketball is supposed to be the biggest sport, so if people aren't going to participate in these pep sessions we have now, then they aren't going to yell at other ones."

"I think the other sports like football should be given some sort of support. Basketball isn't the only sport at Highland or have we forgotten?"

"Lizzie I'm Gonna Make It Rain"

Bill Smith was a man entertaining fancy dreams. Dreams too fancy for one named Smith, so he changed his name to "Starbuck." His occupation was rainmaker. With assistance from God and the gift of a silver tongue, Starbuck brought rain to a town in the West suffering from drought, and love to a "plain girl," who thought love would forever pass her by.

"The Rainmaker" was presented November 2-5. Members of the cast were Larry Sweazy, Rick Pitts, Dave Green, Scott Ramsey, Brian Lakey, Cindy Caswell and Kevin Robinson. "The Rainmaker" is a combination of comedy and romance. It is a story enveloped in the closeness of the characters involved.

Some of the actors and the actress expressed their feelings about being a part of the production and the play itself.

Rick Pitts had this to say, "A difficult production ... I was surprised that a play with such simple beauty was so complex."

"It was my first play (performance) and I loved it! I grew a lot because of it and I also grew to love almost everyone involved," revealed Kevin Robinson.

According to Larry Sweazy, "The content of the play was fantastic. We had so much to work with ... so many talented persons helped make it turn out to be one of my favorite productions."

"Being in a play is something that I wish everyone could experience. It is so hard to express in words the love and warmth that is felt amongst the cast," exclaimed Cindy Caswell.

The audiences' reactions were enthusiastic according to the director, drama teacher, Ron Clark. Many were surprised to see such a "professional" performance. Mr. Clark felt they had apparently not seen much high school theatre in recent years.

"The brightest aspect of the production was the joy of working with a very small cast, a rarity in high school plays. More time could be spent with individual actors in helping them develop their roles as fully as possible. I believe we were able to have the very best possible cast for "The Rainmaker"—one that was well-balanced and one that worked well together," reflected Mr. Clark.

One major problem was redesigning the stage set to fit the studio theatre's small stage. Though the small stage and drama area is definitely a disadvantage, perhaps the close quarters helped the audience feel the closeness among the characters.

1978 Blizzard Hits Scotland

It was a normal Wednesday afternoon in the month of January when students boarded their buses to go home at 2:30. However Highlanders did not return Thursday morning at school. Students and citizens in the surrounding area, found themselves waking up to five and eight foot snow drifts covering their roads and homes. On January 25, a blizzard hit the state of Indiana, and was the worse storm ever recorded. The storm consisting of thirty and forty miles per hour winds with rapidly falling snow, paralyzed the area for several days. Schools, industries and churches were shut down, and social activities were cancelled, including the "New Beginnings" dance scheduled January 27, which was postponed earlier because of weather conditions. All sports events that the Scot teams were to participate in were postponed. So what did Highlanders do for a social life? Well many of them found themselves with shovel in hand, getting no where, but receiving an aching back and a frostbitten nose. And then there was those who sat inside all day, and caught up on all of their favorite soap operas, gaining pounds by the minute. Many other Highlanders said they were just plain bored.

Mayor Robert Rock called for a Snow Emergency for the city of Anderson, and anyone that was found traveling on county or city roads were to be arrested. Governor Otis Bowen contacted Washington D.C. and filed for Federal Disaster Aid, thus declaring a state wide Snow Emergency for Indiana. National Guard and citizens owning four-wheel drive vehicles aided in the rescue of stranded people who were in extreme emergencies, such as, a sudden illness or in some cases pregnancies. The main concern to many people was their food supply. But in the intense moments of the storm, students and citizens found that people will help and care for others. There will be many tall tales about this storm to pass down to generations to come, what will you tell your children and grandchildren about the Blizzard of 1978?

Who Studies in Study Hall?

The record player's volume is turned up loud and the Bee Gee's "whisper" the question, "How deep is your love?" Over in the corner, hearts are trump in a never ending card game. The air is filled with constant chatter consisting of everything from juicy gossip to comments on the weather.

Somewhere in the building, there is another class under the same name—study hall. All is silent, one fears if he breathes too loudly, he will be sentenced to the fate of the deans. Faces are hidden behind magazines or buried within one's arms to catch up on lost sleep. Letters are written to friends and lovers, who are miles away, or just two rows over. To pass the time, if all else fails, a person can always tune out the world and daydream . . .

Does anyone study in study hall? From time to time, one does find a fellow student concentrating on an assignment during this period. One student flippantly replied, "Study halls are a waste." Another stated that they sometimes came in handy.

As always, homework fills much of the student's spare time. According to recent surveys, it is best if one studies in silence. Even so, well over three-fourths of the top ten percent of the class of '78 do their homework with the radio on. Many are also surrounded by other forms of distraction. One senior cried, "Study without the radio on—I couldn't concentrate!"

Studying is still very much a part of the school scene. Students can be found cramming for a test during their lunch break. Others are "caught in the act" of finishing up their homework during passing periods. Perhaps, Donna Duquaine spoke for all of us when she said, "I'd love school, if it were not for the tests, assignments, and homework!"

If Money Is Scarce In Your Pocket . . .

Did money get you down in the 1977-78 school year? Many Highland students thought the only solution when they were without money was to stay home and watch television. But there were some who pulled themselves away from the Flintstones and used their imagination for entertainment.

A pictorial essay shows several ways students employed time when money was scarce.

Use Your Imagination

We Will Rock You

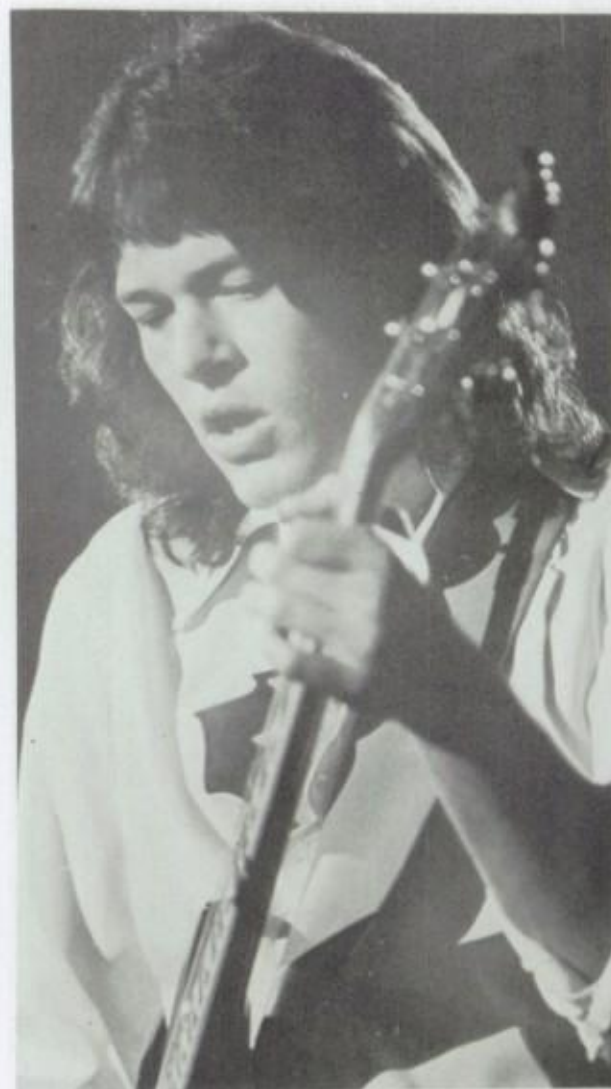

When rock star Rod Stewart belts out the words "you're in my heart, you're in my soul", he is singing about his lover, even so, he could just as well be referring to the high school student and music.

"People's Choice" awards are the results of a nationwide survey of viewers over 12 years old. The results were announced February 20. Some of the award winners were Linda Ronstadt, trailed by Debbie Boone and Olivia Newton-John for favorite female musical performer. Peter Frampton was voted favorite male musical performer. Shaun Cassidy and Barry Manilow were runners up. "Boogie Nights" and "You Light Up My Life" shared the award for favorite song.

Grammys were presented on Thursday of the same week. Fleetwood Mac's LP spent most of the year at the top of the charts. "Rumors" was named album of the year. Rhythm and Blues song of the year was "You Make Me Feel Like Dancing" by Leo Sayer and "Don't It Make My Brown Eyes Blue" by Crystal Gayle was named country song of the year. The Eagles won record of the year for "Hotel California."

Whether one prefers hard, acid rock or soft, mellow sounds, his stereo is a good and welcome friend. Many said that they always study with music on. One junior related "I am two different people—one the world sees and when I am alone in my room with the radio on. I can take off my masks and get my head together." "When the world seems to be falling down on me, I turn on the stereo and shut out reality," another revealed. Music is also often a topic of conversation and cause of conflict when it comes to parents. Looking on the brighter side, one student, in a convincing tone of voice and a smile on her face cried, "Music always makes a good thing better!"

What makes a song your favorite? Do you like it because it is easy to dance to and you can "get into" the beat? Or are the lyrics important? For the week of 2/24/77 these were the top ten singles as listed by Billboard:

1. "Love Is Thicker Than Water"—Andy Gibb
2. "Stayin' Alive"—Bee Gees
3. "Sometimes When We Touch"—Dan Hill
4. "Emotions"—Samantha Sang
5. "Night Fever"—Bee Gees
6. "Dance, Dance, Dance, Yowash Yowash"—Chic
7. "Lay Down Sally"—Eric Clapton
8. "Just The Way You Are"—Billy Joel
9. "I Go Crazy"—Paul Davis
10. "How Deep Is Your Love"—Bee Gees

The "On Again-Off Again" Companion

You are up to your ears in homework and your books are calling. But they will just have to wait ... It is time for your favorite television program and nothing will keep you away from this week's episode.

According to survey, the average Highlander home is equipped with three television sets. Most students spend about 5 to 25 hours in front of the t.v. Yet, there are some, as they hide behind the T.V. Guide, who admit to watching "boob tube" at least 40 hours in a seven day period.

No, the boy in the front of your history class was not having some sort of strange fit. Yes, he moaned "oh, oh, oh" and bounced up and down in his seat, but he was simply depicting Horshack in "Welcome Back Kotter." Due to the popularity of "Charlie's Angels," Scottish lassies were seen sporting the Farrah Fawcett hairstyle.

Popular opinion revealed it was not "blood & guts" that drew viewers to "Starsky & Hutch." Instead, they admired and enjoyed the deep friendship and closeness shared by these two men.

During commercials, when you are tired of hearing about toothpaste and breakfast cereals, stop and think ... Will the "Happy Days" of the 90's be reruns of "Welcome Back Kotter" and/or "Eight is Enough"? Will our children laugh at the feathered hair and make fun of faded jeans?

Movie Mania

Muncie experiences a close encounter of the third kind. "Star Wars" breaks all box office records. Encounters with the world beyond appeal to just about everyone.

The seemingly long forgotten "knight in shining armor" image makes a reappearance. Luke Skywalker, who plays the hero in "Star Wars", saves a maiden in distress. He is honest, loyal, dedicated, patriotic, decent and self-reliant. Equally inspirational, "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" stimulates one to follow his own dreams and to accept people who are different. The movie reflects that the unknown can be beautiful and wonderful.

"Saturday Night Fever" evolves around a young man's search for true happiness. This film set the seal on John Travolta's superstardom and grossed $31 million in the first thirty days. "Saturday Night Fever" created an epidemic of "disco fever" and sent a number of the Bee Gee's songs to the top.

Reminiscent of Good Old School Days

There were not many typical school days at Highland. Each day brought new problems to solve, new friends to meet, and on some occasions, new food to try in the cafeteria. The utmost cool student would have to admit that school days were not that boring. But there are some exceptions to this statement: Mr. Brown's lectures, a study hall with nothing to do, lunch hours without your best friends, and homerooms where the teacher doesn't issue passes to walk the halls.

The thirty-minute lunch hours were probably the most sociable time students had. It was a time where they could catch up on morning gossip, and make some more gossip for the afternoon classes, or talk about Friday night's game or party. But after lunch, students had to put aside their social plans and hit the books again and count the minutes until passing period.

Passing period was a time where students either ran the fifty-yard dash to get to their next class, or took their time and talked to everybody they met, and didn't really care if they were late. Because the individual knew if he smiled nice to the teacher when they came in the room, and told her their dog chewed up their assignment, they wouldn't have any problems.

Other typical school scenes included: love scenes at the lockers, blue jeans galore on Fridays, the sound of disco in the halls during Physical Ed classes, the sight of batons in C gym sixth hour, and the thunder of the paddle in the halls. All of these activities and many more are part of each student, and each Highlander will one day cherish their memories of "the typical high school day."

Size and Experience vs. Scots in Sectional

For the first time on television, the Indiana High School Athletic Association sectional draw was shown. The Anderson section was the first to be drawn with Daleville and Lapel in the opening game, Madison Heights and Anderson to follow. The second bracket consisted of Frankton taking on Alexandria. The final game was finally drawn with Pendleton Heights playing Highland. But with the energy crunch, the area principals met and decided to play all four first round games on Saturday March 8, starting at 9:00 a.m. and winding up around 4:00 p.m. with the final game. The semi-final and championship game was then played the following Saturday.

Sectional week was not as spirited as years before, due to the fact the Scot fans could not have pep sessions during school, or stay after school to decorate the halls. So pep club planned a pep session at the Anderson Roll Arena Friday March 10. Another sectional activity consisted of members of the senior class paying a visit to Pendleton Friday. Following the act were several juniors going to Pendleton after school to show their spirit. The dress-up day was also Friday. "Hats Off", and "Sock it to Em", were the main ideas, along with the plaid and white worn by everyone.

Highland entered the sectional with a very young, inexperienced tourney team, consisting of only two players out of the twelve who had ever seen sectional play before, senior Gary Lawrence and junior Keith Richie. Highland defeated the Arabians 42-37 with Brad Warner as the leading scorer. Along with Highland, Lapel, Alexandria and Anderson also won their first round competition.

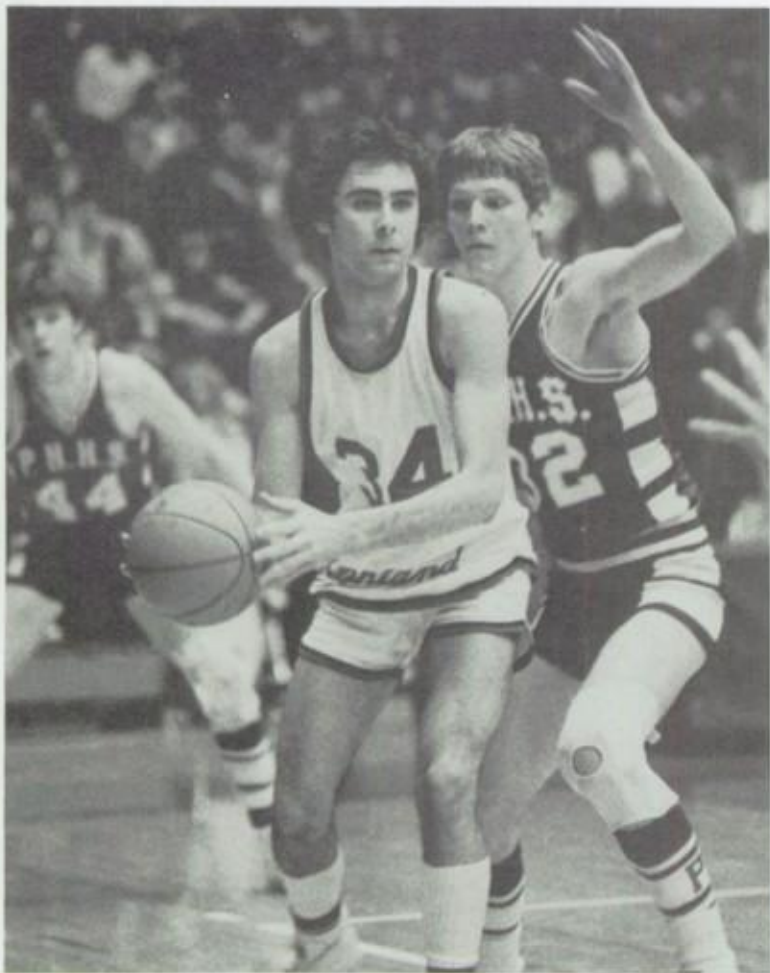

The following week brought more spirit and enthusiasm. The week consisted of 50's Day, "Sock it to Em", Plaid and White, along with "Hats Off". Friday brought seniors together to go to Alexandria and show their spirit. Later, a junior car caravan full of spirit woke-up the town of Alex with their spirit.

The semi-final round found the Scots facing the 6-6, 6-4, 6-3 Alex starting line-up. Spirit was high that game even down to the last few minutes of the contest. But even with the Scots young and powerful determination, the Alex Tiger's height and experience defeated the Scots. Norman Delph led the Scots scoring with 15 points with Brad Warner adding 13. Sophomores Norman Delph and Brad Warner were also named for the Herald Newspapers All-Tourney team. And the Bulletin Newspaper chose Norman Delph for their All-Tourney Team.

Fashions Symbolizes Students at HHS

The 1977-78 school year at Highland brought new fads and fashions. The fall looks started the year out with Levi's and big bulky sweaters. The apparel for sporting events such as football games brought down vest and jackets. These styles were not only seen on one sex, but everybody was in the groove.

Along with staying in the fashion trend in the winter months, a student had to think about keeping warm. The skirt and boot were the main hit with the females, along with a cowl neck sweater to compliment the outfit. To take a look at the male styles, all a person had to do was take a glimpse of Senior Gary Lawrence. Jay Masters and Teresa Fowler always looked like they paired perfectly with their matching outfits during the school year. There was always the popular T-shirt and a pair of blue jeans that wandered the halls of HHS.

Spring popped in with pastel colors. Students put their winter coats back in their closet and drug out their warm-up jackets, raincoats and sweat-shirts.

A person could always point out the students that are in special activities such as sports. The girls basketball team, boys varsity basketball, gymnastics along with the Tartan staff plus many more, signified their organization with a special T-shirt, the day of their game, meet, or distribution days.

What's in the Plain Brown Wrapper?

Life has its ups and downs. And Highland had its share of problems during the 77-78 school year.

Classes had resumed, yet a great number of teachers were still soaking up the sun—not to mention the rain—on the picket line.

As the saying goes, there is at least two sides to every story. This one has three: that of the Anderson Classroom Teachers, that of the Anderson Federation of Teachers and that of those belonging to neither. Each has and expresses their own point of view.

No, the lady of fortune did not appear to smile on our basketball season either. Due to participation in a church league game, senior Mike Johnson became ineligible for high school sports in the 1977-78 school year. According to the IHSAA rule book, senior Rick Kriss came to Highland under undue influence. He too was ruled ineligible. For a time, HHS was placed on athletic probation. Yet, there were victories and high points. Just ask any true Highlander, and he will say, "They're our Scots and we're proud of 'em!"

During the basketball season, snow became an unwelcome visitor. If one looked around, he would see a T-shirt expressing the slogan "I Survived the Blizzard of 78." The blizzard which hit Indiana was said to be the worst in over a hundred years. And the snow just kept coming . . . Several days of school were missed. As a result, all were forced to cram a six-weeks grading period into four weeks, causing many headaches and some grades to drop.

Another obstacle was presented—the brown paper bag. Due to the coal strike and energy situation, changes had to be made. As a result, the cafeteria began serving cold meals and many students started bringing their lunches. Many after school activities, including athletic practices, were postponed or cancelled all together. Shop machines, sewing machines and many other electrical appliances were allowed to "sleep." The hallways were darkened. One often found himself bumping into the walls and other bodies, and returning "hello's" not being quite sure of whom he was speaking to.

Some may wonder about a year that started out slow and ended up in the dark . . . But ask the optimist—everyone needs a change now and then.

Take a Look Outside

Often one is wrapped up in his own "little world." Yet the outside world exists. During the year school problems and issues were exposed. Many were "awakened" and got involved.

Even when history books were closed, many experienced a "lesson" in politics, government and world affairs. November 22, United States Senator Richard Lugar delivered a speech to Highland students. Afterwards, Lugar stressed that he would like to meet the student body. Many students were nervous, as well as pleased, when they stood in line to shake his hand and talk with him.

The age old war continues in the Middle East. The United States often acts as a go-between for Egypt and Israel. Some worry about the war's affect on the U.S. and its oil.

As of March, for eight months, the Carter Administration has waged a super-sell campaign to persuade the public and Senate to support the Panama Canal treaties. Some say the canal is of little use to us with aircrafts and the size of ships, yet it is often used when exporting goods such as soybeans.

Rumor has it that Billy Carter is making more money than his brother—the President. As a result of his popularity, a beer was put on the market in his honor.

Jimmy Carter invoked the Taft-Hartley Act in an effort to get the coal miners back to work. Even so, the strike continues to go on. The danger of economically devastating layoffs and power shortages threaten.

1978 is the year of primary elections. Even though one in Mrs. Lashbrook's government classes may get tired of hearing that in Indiana primary elections are held the first Tuesday after the first Monday in May, he can be thankful that he is not under the leadership of Idi Amin. As stated in Time, "There are no human rights in Uganda."

So if one does not fall in a chuckhole (now renamed "craters") caused by the bitter winter, perhaps, he will take a part in his government and vote.

Miss Highlander Crowned

"Postponed" is an adjective often used when describing a great number of this year's activities. Early in the holiday season, the candidates for Miss Highlander were chosen. She was to be crowned at the Christmas Dance—weather snowed this plan under. It was then anticipated that the queen and her court would reign at the Sweetheart dance. This dance also had to be planned on a later date; in March the "Spring Fling" was postponed . . .

The nominees waiting in anticipation were chosen by homeroom vote. The following paragraphs will acquaint one with the court.

Senior, head majorette Teresa Fowler states that she feels good about herself physically because she is always dancing, marching or just doing something . . . she hates to sit still. "I've always wanted to meet Gene Kelly and dance with him," Teresa revealed. Her favorite childhood toy was a teddy bear, who no longer has a nose or mouth, and she always tries to have a positive attitude.

The vice-president of the junior class, Laurie Small expressed that she would most like to meet Micheal Landon because he is "such a good actor and so good lookin'." Her favorite toys were Barbie dolls—she could dress them up in fancy clothes. Laurie tries to make the best of her appearance and feels that she cries too much.

In her younger days, cheerleader, senior Wendy Moore used to play with Barbie dolls all day long. She revealed, "sometimes I don't like being so tall, but most of the time I'm glad I am." Wendy likes to laugh and to be around people. She likes helping those with problems and would most like to meet "Dear Abby."

Believing that heredity has a lot to do with a person, cheerleader, junior Cindy Bradford would like to meet her ancestors. Cindy describes herself as a happy person. She too favored Barbie dolls . . . "I guess the reason I liked playing with my barbies is that I could dream up episodes which related to human life."

Some debate whether the snowfall on the 21 was a good or bad omen, but nevertheless, on April 22 assistant editor Debbie Hullinger crowned Laurie Small, Miss Highlander. Laurie was escorted by Jim Ellis, Wendy Moore by Randy Holland, Cindy Bradford by Rick Kriss and Teresa Fowler by Mickey Braden. Marking the last dance of the year sponsored by student council, the event resulted in loss rather than profit because of the small turn-out.

Highland Welcomes North Central Committee

Highland High School experienced a visit March 20th through the 23rd, from the North Central Association. The association consisted of a committee of seventeen educators from different schools throughout Indiana. The purpose of the visit was the development and maintenance of Highland's education program. They mainly observed how the school's education programs operated and offered suggestions for improvements.

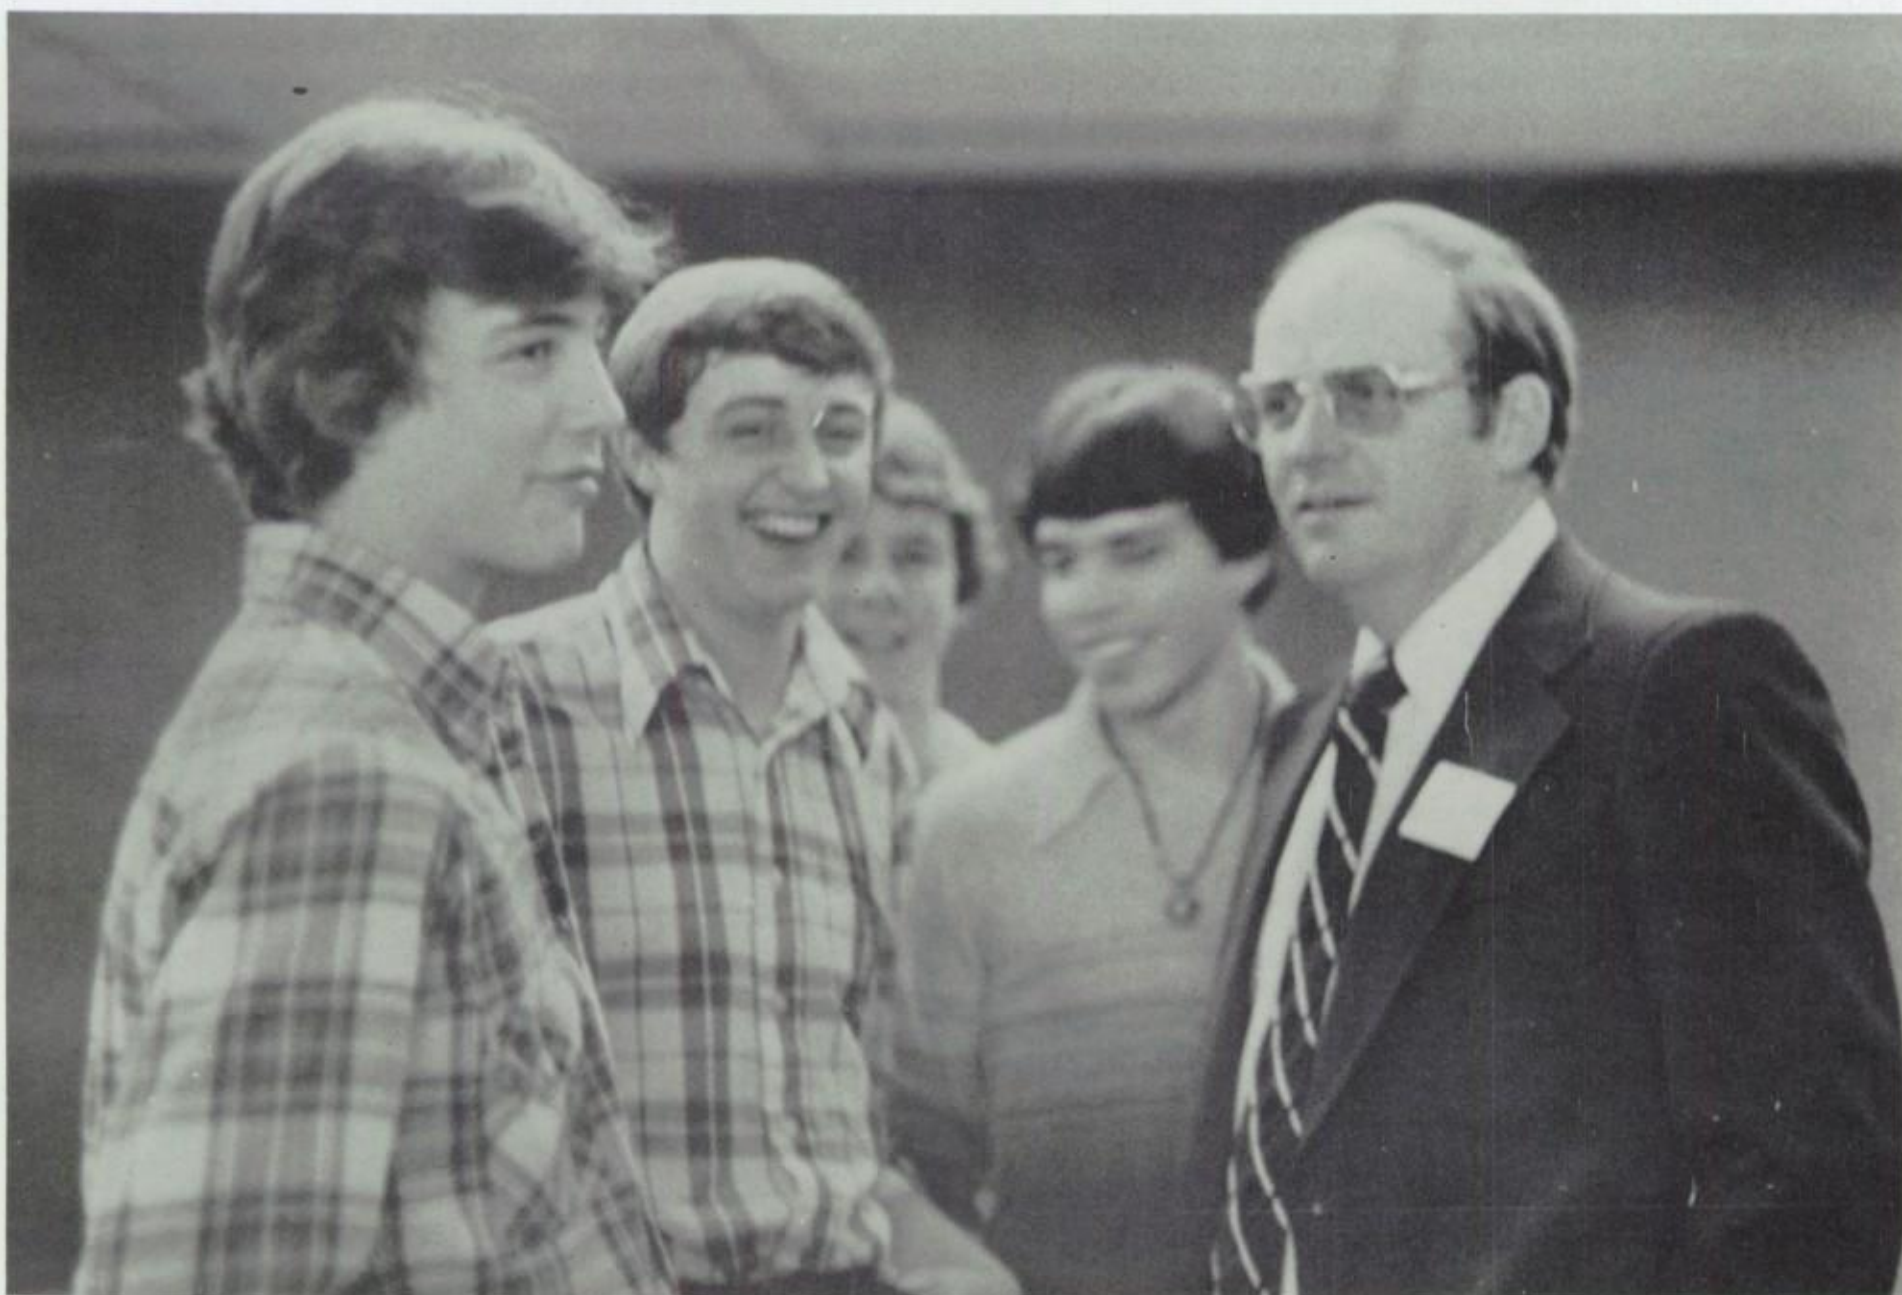

The North Central Association began their voluntary service in 1901. Highland has been observed before, every seven years. The faculty had been undergoing a self-evaluation for the past three years before the visit. They updated the school's philosophy and objectives. Each department saw if they were in total agreement.

The evaluation team had twenty guidelines by which they evaluated the school. They ranged from: the quality of the staff, organizational climate, program of the studies to the potentiality for change.

Today Is Payday

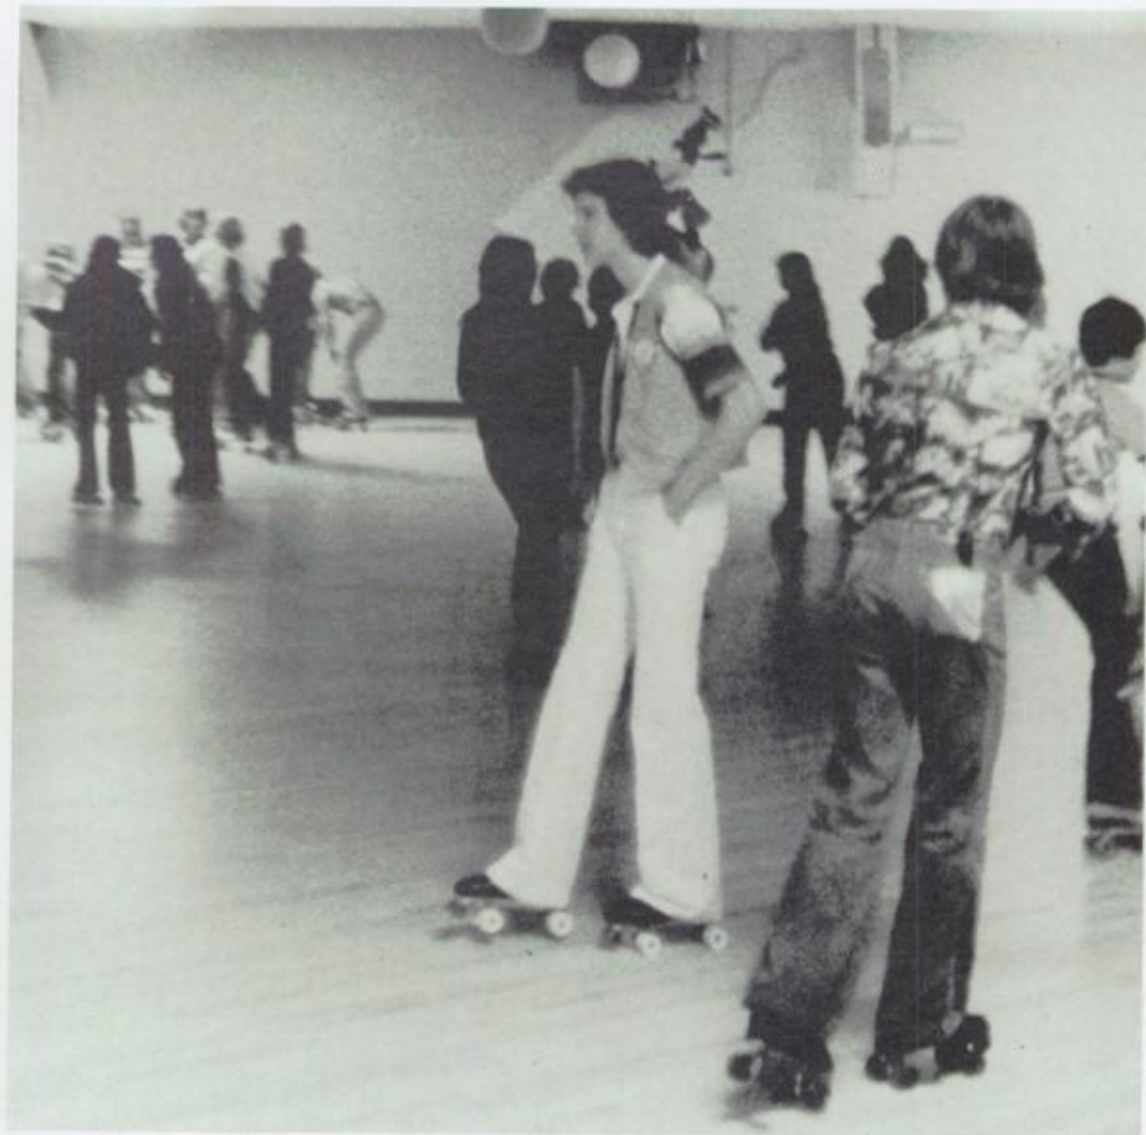

What do you think of when someone mentions McDonald's or Wendy's? Perhaps a quarter pounder or a frosty comes to mind. Or maybe you say, "I have a job there" or "My best friend works there." Fast food restaurants are one of the most popular places of high school student employment.

But student employment does not only consist of mustard and pickles. The places of employment and jobs endured are as varied as those who pursue them. Everything from cleaning out horse stalls to answering and making phone calls is given a whirl.

As of January 1, 1978 the minimum wage was raised to $2.65 an hour. Even so, there are loop holes in this statement and not all employers are required to pay employees this rate. The babysitter, who works for fifty cents an hour, is not extinct. And let's not forget the volunteers.

The reasons for attaining a job are many. Some do because of the need or want of extra money. Others want the experience. And then there are those who just want to get out of the house

Tomorrow the Sun is Going to Shine

In the same breath that he graciously accepts congratulations for the spring play, director Mr. Ron Clark states, "it was the kids' production." Illness struck Mr. Clark before "Story Theatre" was ready for curtain time. Much responsibility was placed on the shoulders of student director junior Rick Pitts and the cast. As student director, Rick was involved in his fourth consecutive Highland production.

In "Story Theatre," which ran April 12-15, the actors were required to take on different roles. Those making their stage debut were Kathy Burton ... ask her if she ever got the keys to her chest back, Brachen McCurdy ... the robber with the "razzle-dazzle" smile, Kevin Hogg ... the rosey-cheeked, kind-hearted simpleton ... Tyron Walton ...

the hound with iron poor blood and Shelly Boggs ... she insists the sky is falling. Others making an appearance were Sterling Smith ... a Count who drives a hard bargain, Becky Murphy ... the bride-to-be who collects fingers, Pam Tudor ... get her to "die" for you and Kevin Robinson ... a magic little gray man in favor of Gray Lib. Wrapping up the cast of fourteen were Cindy Caswell ... who's favorite pastime is to sit by the fire and purr, Doug Long ... ask him what he's doing "tomorrow," Troy Whittington ... the cute Mexican hiding behind his lunch sack and Dave Green ... a witty little peasant who's wink steals the heart of the audience. Three accompanists, juniors, Clay Powell, Ron Brock and Lisa Fuqua add a touch of guitar to the play.

Mr. Clark told those who questioned him about the play that "Story Theatre" was not a structured production. His words rang clear when he was gently pushed aside during his opening introduction and welcome as the cast exploded onto the stage doing a disco number from the soundtrack "Saturday Night Fever."

The scenes flowed as follows: The Little Peasant, The Breman Town Musicians, Is He Fat?, Henny Penny, The Master Thief, The Robber Bridegroom, Two Ravens and the Golden Goose. During Henny Penny, a song called "Fixin' to Die" concerning the Vietnam War grips and saddens the hearts of those listening. The closing number "Little Darling" promised the ending of winter and the coming of sunshine.

Plaid and White Adds New Dimensions

"Come and see the all new Plaid and White," were the words posted on all bulletin boards and vacant spaces in the H.H.S. halls in the month of April. Band director, Mr. John Parshall, assistant director, Mr. John Gilliland and choreographer, Mrs. Sarah Withrow put together some new flings to the annual event, and made it into a spectacular show.

At 8:00 p.m. on April 28 as well as on April 29, the deeply voiced Master of Ceremony would get the show rolling in the Highland gymnasium.

The 20th annual event started out with "The Scots Salute" arrangements, following with "A Travelogue of Sound", containing arrangements from all over the world. Russian Sabre, Voodoo and Tropical song and dances were involved. The piper took over with several medleys. The stage band entered the act with four popular songs. Junior Cathy Coolidge sang, "Little Girl Blue". Wind Ensemble began with a popular song and dance, "Rock Around the Clock", followed by more songs and dances. The show wound up with the ever popular "Yankee Doodle Boy" majorette dance, and "Auld Lang Syne" arrangement.

"The show must go on," was the popular thought of everyone in the production of Plaid and White. Junior Brenda Wade performed one dance with a chipped bone and a cast on her ankle—true dedication, while John Porter was taken to the hospital during practice one night, when a backdrop fell on him. Through all the headaches and problems, Mrs. Withrow said, "I am very proud of the girls and feel like the mother of thirty-two girls."

The seniors in the show were: Teresa Fowler, Mike Agee, Dennis Fisher, David Knapp, Don Williams, Belinda Mains, Mary Neese, Elizabeth Copeland, Susan Johnson and Verónica Minnefled.

Slides Add Life to Musicale

A laughing hyena, identified as senior Jay Masters started Musicale 1978 out with a tickle. The choir then sang the theme from "Rocky", and continued on with, "Sunshine Where Have You Gone". The Highland Singers entered the scene with the arrangement of "Old Fashion Love Song", followed by a duet with senior Lana Cade and junior Robyn Jervis singing "My Fair Share". The choir took over then with two songs, "House is Not a Home" and "Tryin To Get Ready". Junior Becky Butler sang a solo, "You Light Up My Life", with Julie Richardson following with a pantomime. The H.H.S. singers then sang three popular songs. The show wound-up with a childrens special section taken from "Pete's Dragon", and a pictorial slide presentation of the everyday school life, with the song, "Times of Your Life".

Musicale was presented both May 18 and May 19 in the Highland gymnasium.

Tonight Is Forever For Queen And Court

The moment everyone had been waiting for, finally came on May 12. The candidates for the 1978 prom were Kelly Williams, Shelly Boggs, Sue Armstrong, Lori Hunt and Laurie Small. When the drum roll began and the anxieties arose, Lori Hunt was crowned prom queen.

Lori was escorted by Chris Richardson. Her favorite food is steak and watermelon, her favorite perfume is Jontue, and her favorite pet is her Golden Retriever.

First runner-up, Sue Armstrong said her favorite food is seafood, she likes cats and her favorite perfume is Jontue. Her escort was Jamie Carpenter.

Shelly Boggs was escorted by Jody Jamerson. Her favorite perfume is Babe, and her favorite food is ice cream.

Laurie Small likes Taco's and she has a parakeet as a pet. Her fragrance is Sweet Honesty and she was escorted by Gary Lawrence.

Kelly Williams was escorted by Jeff Ogden. Her favorite pet is a sheepdog and she likes Sweet Honesty perfume.

When prom queen Lori Hunt was asked what it meant to her to be prom queen, she said, "To me, it is a great honor just to be able to say that people liked and respected me enough to put me up for it. It just really is nice to be able to stand up in front of everyone and represent my class as well as I am able."

May 15 will be remembered by these five girls forever.

Prom Memories Last Forever

On Friday, May 12 at about 11:00 a.m., there was a mad dash to the parking lot. Highland seniors and juniors were heading towards town to pick-up tuxedos, flowers and do some last minute shopping. Why all the chaos? The annual night of prom was coming closer and closer. Girls were getting nervous about how their hair would look, and the guys were polishing their cars, and wondering if their tuxes would fit right.

At 9:00 p.m. the spectacular evening began. The Charlie Brown Revue provided the music for H.H.S. couples to dance to. Both commons area and B gym were magically decorated, with stars hanging from the ceiling in the commons area, and candles decorating tables in both gyms. In the B gym there was a beautiful fountain with streamers hanging from the ceiling surrounding it.

Mr. Don Land, one of the junior sponsors said, "It took over 40 hours of hard work to put the prom on." He also commented, "it was a learning experience that taught the kids about pre-planning." Mr. Andy Roby, the other junior sponsor said, "If it wasn't for the students who put in the time and effort the prom wouldn't have come off."

The theme for the prom, "Tonight Is Forever", will be remembered by everyone who attended, and will be a highlighted evening, cherished by everyone.

"Take It To The Limit"

Senior Week

5,4,3,2,1 ... SENIOR WEEK! A countdown in the commons area announced the number of days left for the '78 seniors. As the last number was torn down, senior week began.

Thursday morning, a week before graduation several seniors enjoyed a breakfast at Linders. Trading name cards seemed to be the entertainment for the morning. Teresa Fowler got a face full of doughnuts and strawberries as she attempted to return to her seat after her second trip to the buffet table. Wendy Moore hit her plate as she passes the name cards.

As graduation grew closer, more than eighty seniors went to King's Island. Throughout the day there was a "strange" turn of events ... one of the bus tires blew which resulted in a crowded seating arrangement and being pulled over by State Troopers, one thing led to another—due to "selfish chaperones", John Bannon's t-shirt became a cooler and Jay Masters learned of the Screamin' Demon kissing tradition.

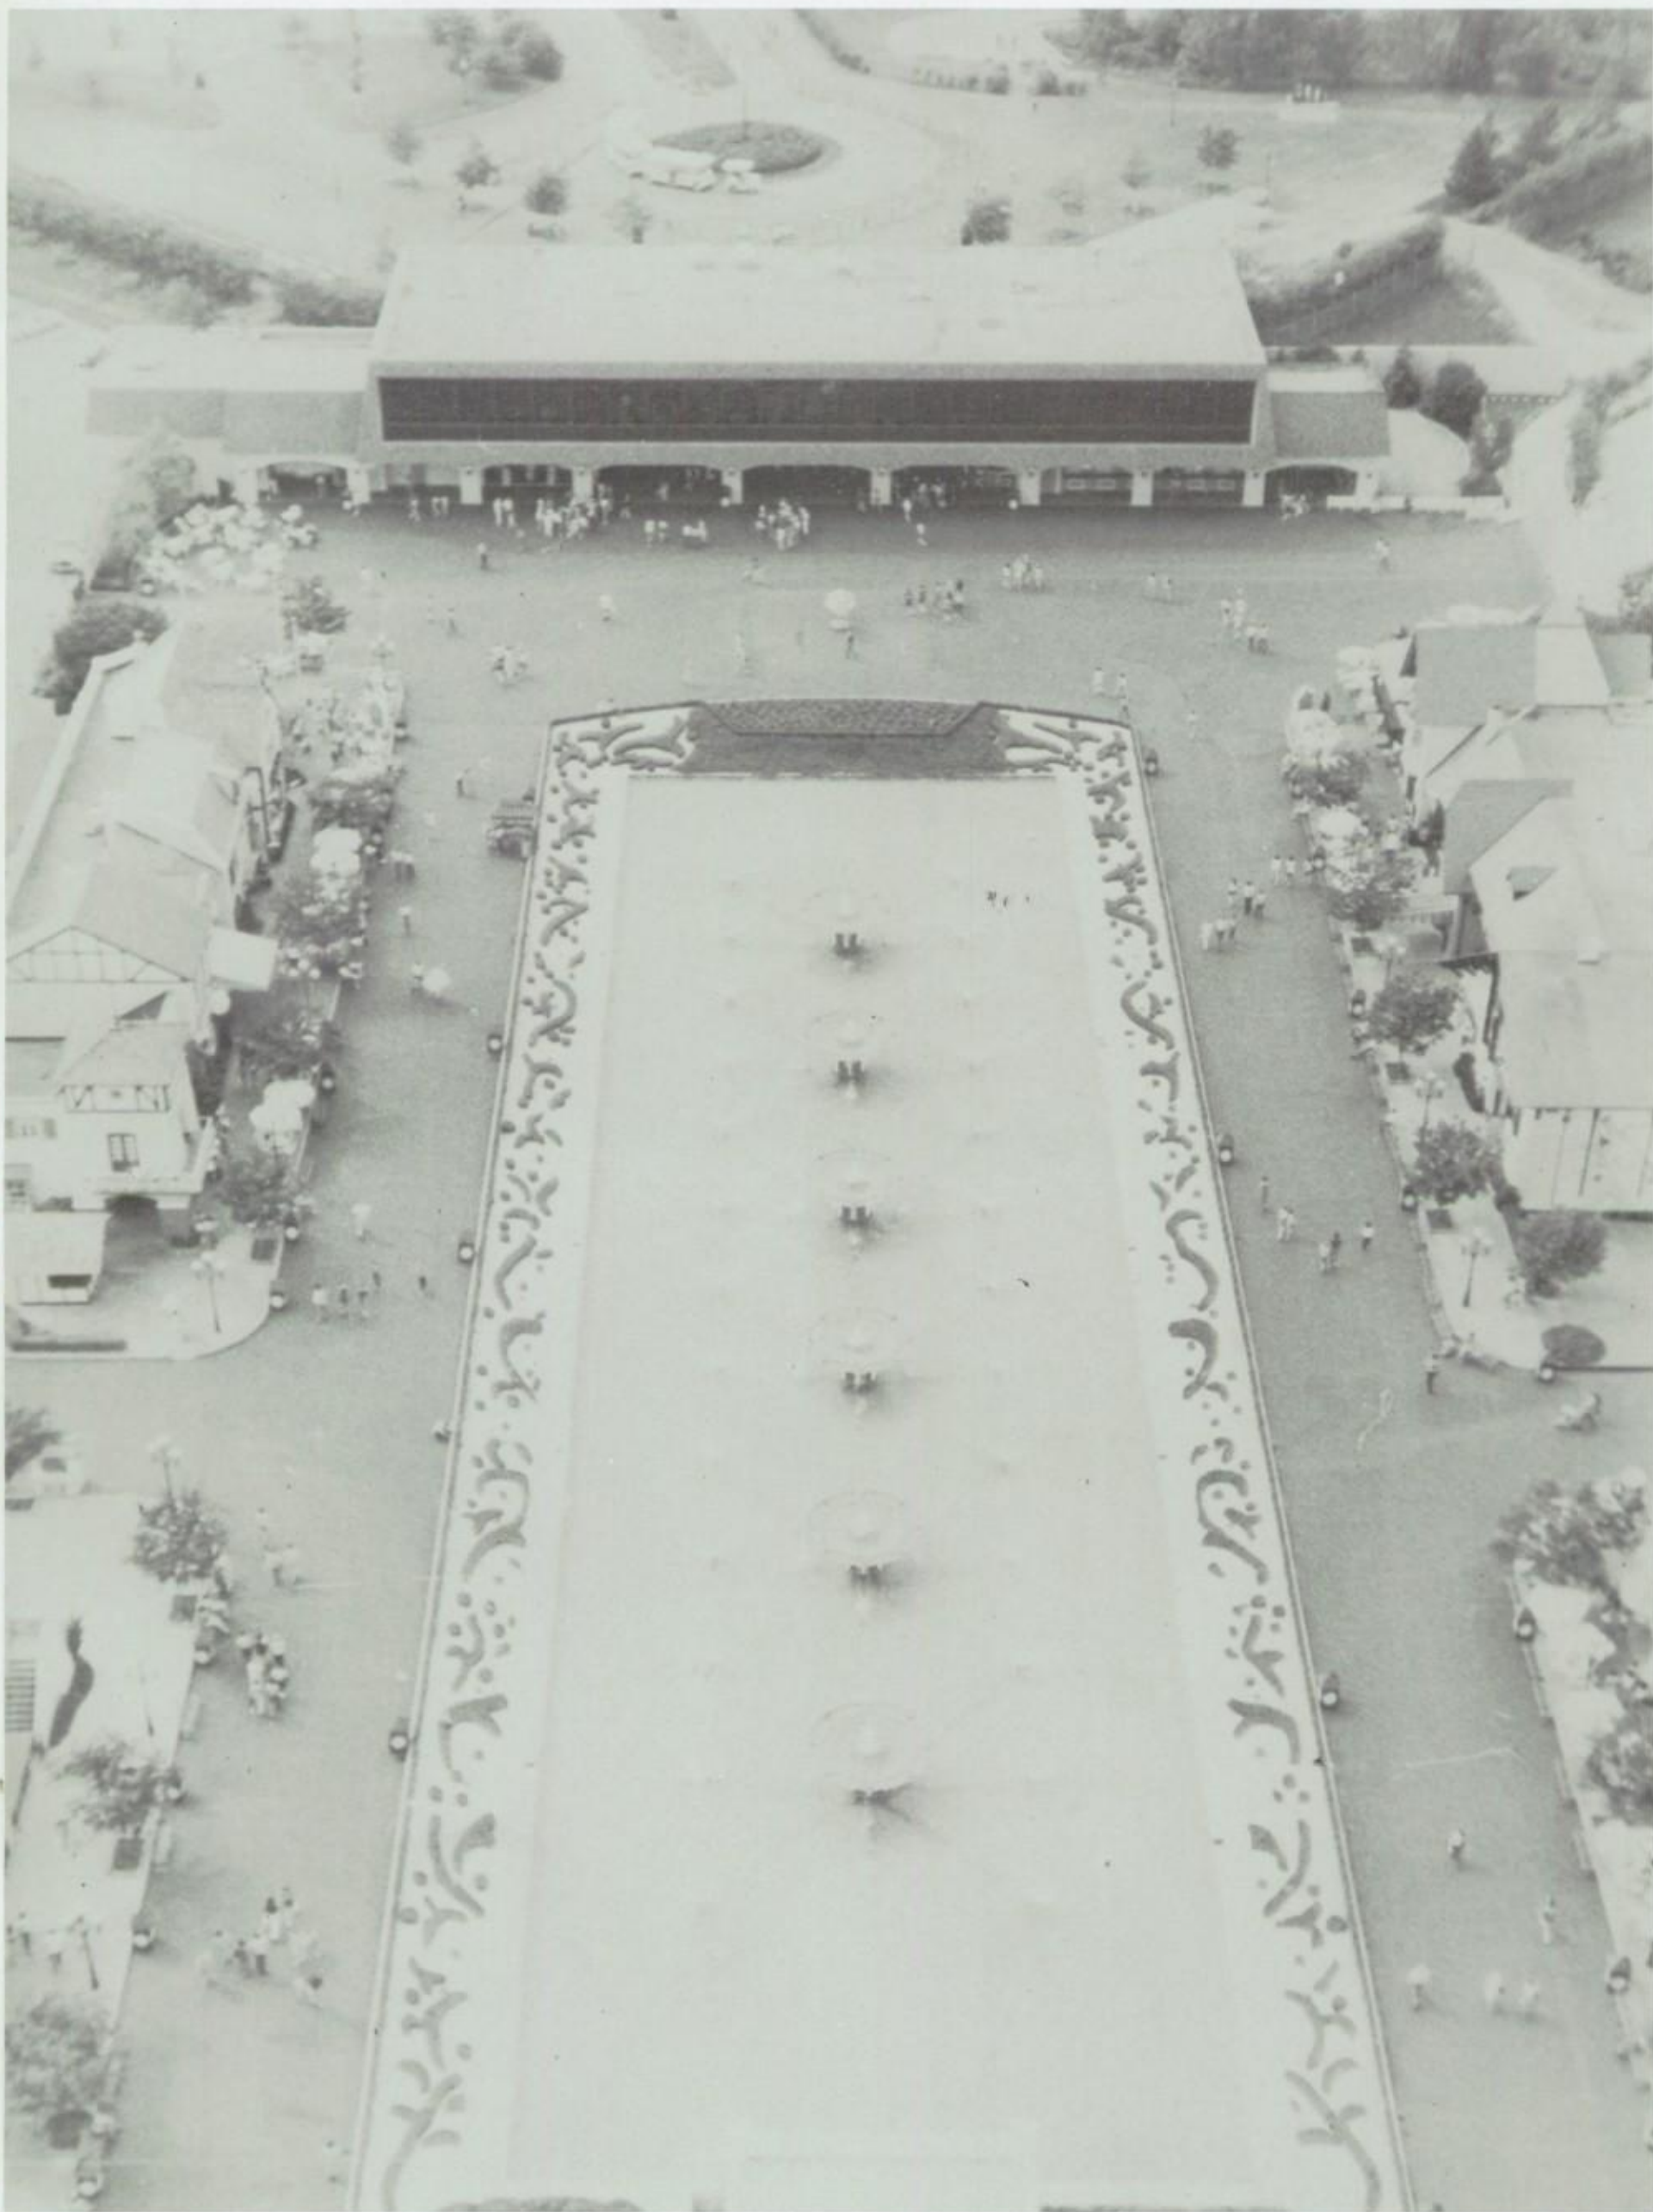

Several other parties and picnics were experienced, including a softball game at Killbuck park making senior week most exciting and memorable.

Upper Right: This is it! Steve Prenatt, Mark Browning, Teresa Quick, David Croce, Dan Osburn, Lukie Newby, Louis Maillet, Marcus Smith are all part of the #1 class.

Far Right: Kings Island is for everyone, King's Island is for you ... Several seniors enjoyed the rides and excitement. Jay Masters enjoyed a splash in the fountain.

Graduation Filled With Mixed Emotions

Take it to the limit and do your very best was the message conveyed by each of the speakers. One by one, on the day of June 1, each of '78 seniors crossed a milestone in their lives.

Dressed in dark and light blue caps and gowns, the Class of '78 was led by valedictorian Dan Osburn and salutatorian Susan Johnson, who gave the traditional commencement speeches. Guest speaker was Rev. John Anderson of Allen Chapel A.M.E. church.

After tassels were turned and diplomas presented "We finally made it!" and "Congratulations!" became the words of the evening. Mixed emotions of tears, laughter and screams were all part of the mood of the 263 seniors as they left the school for perhaps the last time.

Spring Fever Breaks Winter Madness

The Blizzard of 1978 left Highland students with the craving for warm weather, fresh air and green grass. The time finally arrived on March 24, when students were dismissed, boarding their buses to start their spring vacation. Many students and their family or friends headed south to the sunshine state, while others stayed to brave the Hoosier weather.

The week did not start out well, in the Hoosier state, with an ice storm and frigid weather. But the prayers must have been heard because at the end of the week, Spring finally made an appearance.

Students that went south had very good weather and came back with dark tans. Freshman, Stephanie McCurdy and Junior, Brachen McCurdy and their family experienced a trip to Hawaii. Stephanie commented, "the trip was pretty exciting." Another vacationer Kelly Parker said, "I liked the hot weather and sun in Florida."

Campus Life also journeyed southward for some good time, sun and christian fellowship. Highlights of the trip were, Disney World, the ocean, Wet and Wild and Cypress Gardens. Senior Robin Stanley, commented that, "Though her tan faded, her memories of the week will last forever."

Summer vacation held in store jobs, vacations, tans and good times for many students at H.H.S. Reflections of the past year, and planning for the upcoming school year were all part of the summer scene.

"I enjoy participating in or observing sports at Highland because it gives the students a great opportunity to be a part of the school."

"I enjoy observing sports because of basketball. This fine sport is number one in Indiana. It is so great, they even named a disease that may be caused by it, 'Hoosier Hysteria'."

Scots in Action

One big problem this year was the IHSAA probation; but, through it all, Highland students had no trouble keeping their spirits high.

In past years, football and basketball teams have been widely known at H.H.S. But after the '77-'78 year of sports started, not so widely known teams broke through the ice.

Highland was determined not to let the probation stand in the way of their spirit, and succeeded.

OPTIMISM

Scots Beat Alex for First Time.

Optimism was the key word for the '77-78 Highland football team. When the Scots came running out on the field at the annual jamboree, after learning a whole new offense and with only ten days of practice, there was no doubt that they were ready.

The start of a new season was also the start for a new coach and a new feeling for football at Highland. One could only help feeling excited, for the new coach, Dave Edwards, showed so much enthusiasm. He babied the football field day and night and the parents also shared in the excitement by painting the Booster booth. The new coach expressed excitement not only for football but also for other sports, and commented, "We should all support other athletes, athletes supporting athletes."

Dreams came true the night of August 26th. For the first time in 20 years the Scots defeated the Alexandria Tigers, 12 to 7. The Highland Scots were led to victory by Coach Edwards and senior Jeff Shaw commented, "Coach Edwards is a good positive coach and everybody got together for him."

Spirit still existed during the Delta game but flu attacked many of the players and the Eagles defeated the Scots for the first time ever, 36 to 0.

Coach Edwards stated before the season started, "The team believes they can do it. They have been positive." The Scots goal for the season was the best season record ever. However, the Scots tied with last year's record of 5-5. "Each game they played they played better," stated Coach Edwards. At the end of the season the new coach was pleased with the performance of each of the players.

Spirit

Winners and losers are two of a kind.

Dream to come . . . Reserve and Freshmen gridders began with hope and anticipation for another winning season. The Reserves, under the coaching of Jim Beane, had a disappointing season with only one win, early in the season, against Frankton. All of the Reserves played Varsity ball, but had to be moved around from one team to the next which hampered the output of their performance. The spirit of the sport was there, but team unity was lacking. With the experience of playing varsity ball, quarterback Mike Hilbert commented that, "It was worth it." He and his team mates are looking forward to next year.

The Freshmen Scots had a successful season with a record of 7-2. Coaches Don Reynolds and Richard Penley worked hard with their boys teaching them valuable skills needed for competition in years to come. Team defense was one of their strong points. A good attitude and enthusiasm about the game of football was what contributed most to their winning season.

DEDICATION

Scots Enjoy CAC Win

If any team devoted themselves to a high purpose this season, it was the varsity cross country team. A winning season looked less than hopeful. "Many of the members were inexperienced which made the competition seem unbeatable. A winning season would be hard to attain," stated Coach Steve Davis.

Changing from the White River Conference to the Classic Athletic Conference did not change the outcome of the harriers in winning their conference once again. The Scots placed three runners in the top seven. First place went to Sophomore Kendon Hawkins, who was running his first year of varsity cross country. Third place went to Senior Dan Osburn. "It went just about the way I thought it would," commented the third year coach, "I was very pleased. Early season showed that Delta would walk away with the conference. This made the win very enjoyable." The Scots won the meet with 36 points with the Delta Eagles close behind with 49. Also placing were Tony Soverns in seventh, Jim Hickman in twelfth, and Rob Fitzwater in thirteenth. They ended the season with a record of 6-3-1.

BALANCE

Scot Spikers Achieve Rating of 15th.

Balance, not a key player, held the girls' volleyball team together through a challenging season. "I knew we'd be pretty good because we had all of our returning starters except one," stated the Coach, Barbara Conrad.

The Scot spikers played well at the beginning of the season winning their first eight games. Then the undefeated Scots lost a disappointing game to Alexandria. The Scots suffered its second loss of the season to a power team Wes-Del. Highland fell to Wes-Del 11-15, 15-9, 15-2 with Marie Pitts and Judy Knotts leading the Highland effort with nine points each.

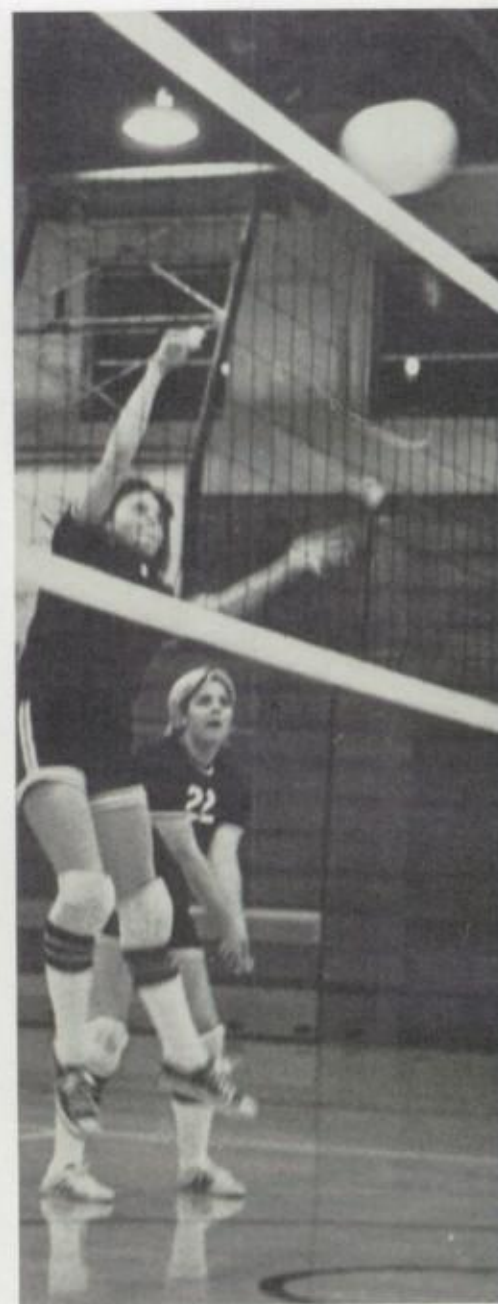

The girls took the city volleyball title later in the season by sweeping winless Madison Heights 15-7, 15-11. Jenny Pitts served nine winning serves with Nancy Savage and Tracy Westerman adding to the victory.

The sectional became another disappointment. "The team was ripped. There is no nice way of putting it. It was a royal rip," commented Coach Conrad. According to the girls, "we lost but we didn't get beat." Highland lost the sectional to Pendleton Heights 12-15, 15-7, 15-6 while trying to defend their title. The spikers finished the season with a record of 15-4.

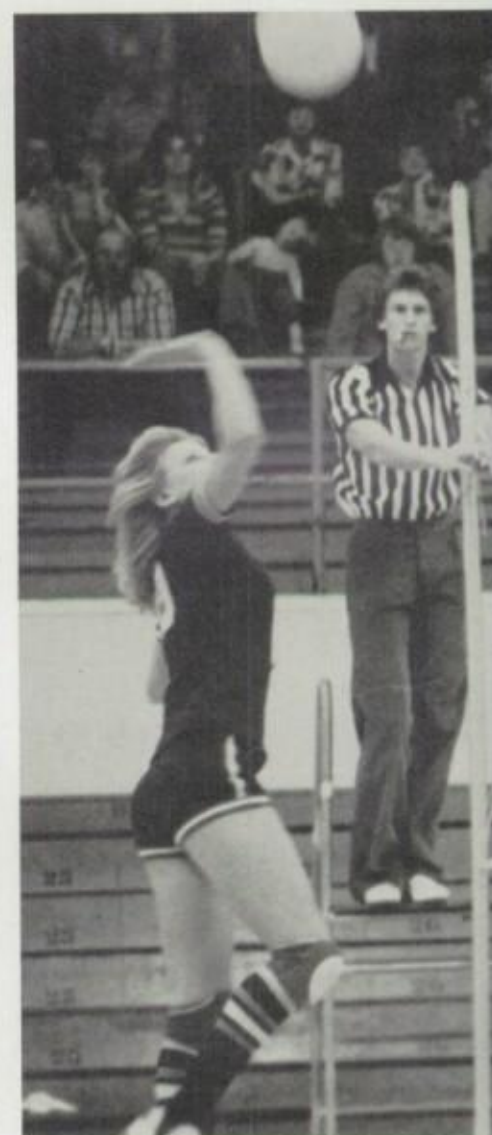

The seniors on the team were co-captains Jenny Pitts and Vicky Hensley, and Tina Warfel, Sue Johnson, Judy Knotts, and Becky Pancol.

Commenting on next year Coach Conrad said, "Next year we'll start a rebuilding program."

IMPROVEMENT

Swimmers Improve

For athletic teams still in relative infancy, the Scots girls' and boys' varsity swim teams showed improvement. Coach Fatzinger's second year varsity teams swam in competition against other very experienced teams and emerged surprisingly well. After last years' disappointing first season the swimmers goal was to go out and do much better than last year and at the same time build and work for the next year.

The girl swimmers who received awards are Cindy Guetersloh, Rachel Duc, Susan Busby and Monica Shaw all receiving red jackets. Rachel Duc also received MVP while Kim Volk was chosen next year's team captain.

The boys swim team competed in the CAC where they finished fourth. Those who placed were Mark Worl finishing first in the 100 Freestyle and second in the 200 Freestyle, Greg Weston finishing sixth in the Butterfly, Paul McCrary finishing fifth in the 500 Freestyle and Mark Scheerer sixth in the Backstroke. Mark Worl went on to compete in the state.

CONFIDENCE

Tennis Team Improves to a State Rating of 9th

Confidence was also the key word that led the boys Varsity and Reserve tennis teams to a successful season.

Before the season started the Scots were confident that they were a team of winners. Senior Randy Wilson stated that, "We all knew we had a real good team because we only lost one player." When asked about how he felt being ranked ninth in the state he said, "It helped the team spirit. It was something to be proud of." Coach Harrison added, "It was the highlight of the year. It was a great thing for the school. The kids in junior high and elementary school are now more aware of us. It was very beneficial." He also said that the team did not become over confident because of the ranking.

The team had no use for psyching up techniques because they were self-starters. On the 38th Street courts hard work and determination at practices improved their skills.

In their second year of competition the Scots raised their record from last years 6-6 season to a well-deserved record of 11-4. Two of the losses were to city rival Anderson. In both meetings the Indians shut out the Scots 5-0. Coach Harrison said that even though they were shut out they were close matches. Anderson was a mature team with a tougher schedule. The Scots also shared the honor of being CAC Co-Champs with Yorktown. If it had not been for one ineligible player the Scots would have won.

As sectional time rolled around the Scots once again were very confident. After defeating Elwood and Madison-Grant, in their first two steps toward sectional victory, the Scots got another chance at the Indians. Both teams agreed it could go either way. Coach Harrison said that they had improved over the previous meeting. Even though the Scots came out leading early the Indians prevailed. Then the Scots just could not sustain the lead. Unfortunately Anderson's experience won out over the Scots talent.

The Reserve teams also had a winning season with a 6-1 record. Craigh Carlson one of the team's leaders, had a successful season of 5-1.

Looking forward, Coach Harrison will be anxious for another great season with the return of two top players, Mike Hamm and Cary Stokes. He will also be looking forward to using the new tennis courts planned on Rangeline Road. Maybe the word confidence will become a tradition with the Scots.

Martha Egger Tops Two New School Records

The power of confidence and how it affects one's game was an important aspect of the girl's golf team. "Not once this year did I hear the girls say 'I can't do it; like they have in the past,'" stated Coach Maryan, who has completed his third year as Varsity coach and his eighth year as a overall golf coach. The whole season centered around confidence building. Confidence was never lacking but it kept growing stronger.

During summer vacation skills were improved. "They have developed into real golfers instead of just swingers," said the coach. Their finishing record, 6 wins and 5 losses, proved that they had improved and finally had the self-confidence.

Starting out the season with two disappointing losses to Anderson and Marion, the girls got it together by defeating Blue River. Martha Egger set a new school record of 46.

The golfers who were runnersup in the Classic Athletic Conference and entered the sectional with their first winning record ever by beating rival Madison Heights 195-207. Lisa Brummet lead the Scot victory and earned medalist honors with a 46. Lori Hunt with a 47 and Martha Egger with a 49 added to the victory. "The sectional was proof of the confidence the girls had gained," commented Coach Maryan. The Scots finished third out of 11 teams at sectional. Other players included are Jenny Hughel, Lori Small, Julie Paugh, and Kim Robertson.

FATE

Scots Struggle Through Fateful Season

The season must have been marked by fate for the Highland Scots suffered a disappointing basketball season for the first time in four years or since the arrival of Coach Bob Fuller.

First, Rick Kriss, a Senior transfer student from North Judson lost his court battle with the IHSAA, losing his eligibility to play basketball at Highland. Therefore, the Scots lost their top scorer and rebounder. Then not long after this, Senior Michael Johnson was declared ineligible for having played in a church game. "It took us a long while to get over that," expressed Coach Fuller. But it still was an impressive year for the Scots who were somehow fated to start with sophomores and juniors.

The Scots started out winning four out of their first five games then the season proceeded to be up and down.

Then after all the trials and frustrations of a six game losing streak, the Scots rebuilt and exploded against the Mt. Vernon Marauders with Sophomore Brad Warner scoring 20 points and Senior Gary Lawrence right behind him with 19 points.

Even though it was one of those crazy years, the young Scots never gave up. They went into the Sectional with a record of 6-13 and played the first game against an older and more experienced Pendleton Heights. The Scots won their first game, against the Arabians, 42-37, but lost the following Saturday in the morning competition against the Alexandria Tigers, 73-56.

Due to the changes in the varsity squad many of the reserve basketball players saw action on the varsity team.

The reserve squad also won the honor of WRC Tourney champs. The reserve boys preparing for next year's varsity team finished their season with a record of 10-8.

The following boys were those who finished the year on the varsity squad: Senior Gary Lawrence, Junior Keith Richie, Junior Harold Robinson, Junior Chris Jones, Sophomore Norman Delph, Sophomore Gary Delph, Sophomore Don Redfield, Sophomore Raymond Sullis, Sophomore Brad Warner, Sophomore Mike Crull, Sophomore Scott Brown, and Sophomore Jerry Simon.

Gary Delph and Keith Richie also made the all-CAC team while teammates Brad Warner and Norman Delph made the first team of All-Tourney.

MEMORABLE Basketball Plagued By Snow

Starting the 77-78 season of girls' varsity basketball, Coach Vicky Bennet was very excited about the big turnout for tryouts. Many girls possessed the skills and talents for the team but unfortunately some had to be cut. Coach Bennet commented that they all had a lot of capability if they could develop it. She was somewhat frustrated knowing that they had so much material to cover in so short a time.

The season was disrupted by the blizzard as were all the winter sports. Snow was helpful however, in the use of ice packs.

The Scots tied with Pendleton Heights and Yorktown for the CAC title. Seniors Vicky Hensley and Becky Pancol were named to the all conference team. In the sectional the Scots defeated the Alex Tigers 62-35 in the first round but lost to the Anderson Indians 49-45 in the second round.

"Up" was the key word for the Freshman basketball team. Coach Joe Jackson commented, "We expected an excellent season and the boys lived up to expectations. It was a good basketball season but it was hard to keep the players "up" with all the snow interruptions."

The Freshmen Scots were 11-2 for the season and won the Anderson City Championship. Five outstanding players for the Scots were Chris Mattox, Jeff Gary, Danny Whitehead, Rod Chamberlain, and team leader Jay Martin.

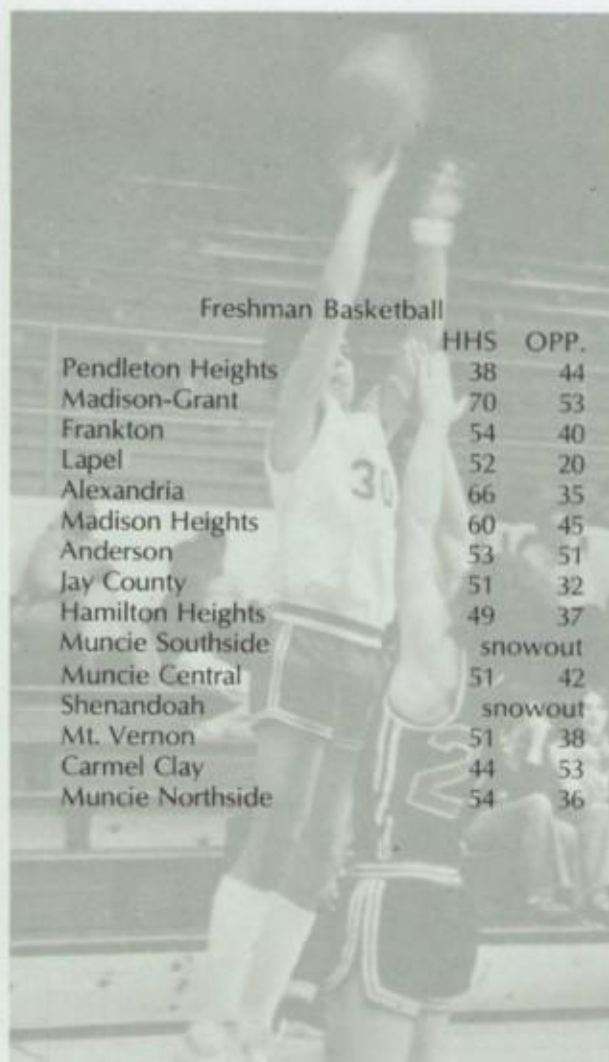

Ending up their successful season Coach Jackson noted, "If this group of young men work hard, they will win the Sectional, Regional, and maybe even the big one at Market Square Arena."

Assistant Coach for the Freshmen Scots and Coach Jackson was Don Reynolds.

FRUSTRATION

Young Scot Wrestlers Struggle With Weather

Weather and the fact that the team was "awfully young" frustrated the 1977-78 wrestlers. The snow that blanketed all of Indiana stopped many sports including six of the team's regular season competition and the conference meets. This in turn frustrated the wrestlers who were ready to compete. The team was also very young with three freshmen competing on the varsity squad. "Since they did away with the junior high program it is difficult to be successful. Because the first time these kids start to wrestle is in the ninth grade," noted Coach Edwards.

Though, through it all emerged three especially good individual wrestlers who went to semi-state: Jim Ritchhart, a regional champ at 138; Brian Coon, runnerup at 105 and Robbie Williams, runnerup at 112. The probable key to the success of these three wrestlers was the fact that they wrestled when they were young and also during the past summer. Jay Masters, a former semi-state qualifier, got sick during the regional and was unable to perform at his best.

Jim Ritchhart was a state qualifier by placing second in the semi-state. He lost in the first round of the state meet to the eventual state champion. His final season record was 19-2.

Coach Edwards commented, "We were frustrated at the beginning of the season but we then turned successful with the team wrestling well in the sectional and three members of the team going on to compete in the semi-state. I believe we started maturing towards the end of the season."

YOUNG Gymnasts Gain Experience

'We knew we would be young and it would be an uphill battle, commented boy's gymnastics coach, John Maryan, but basically we were looking forward to next year.'

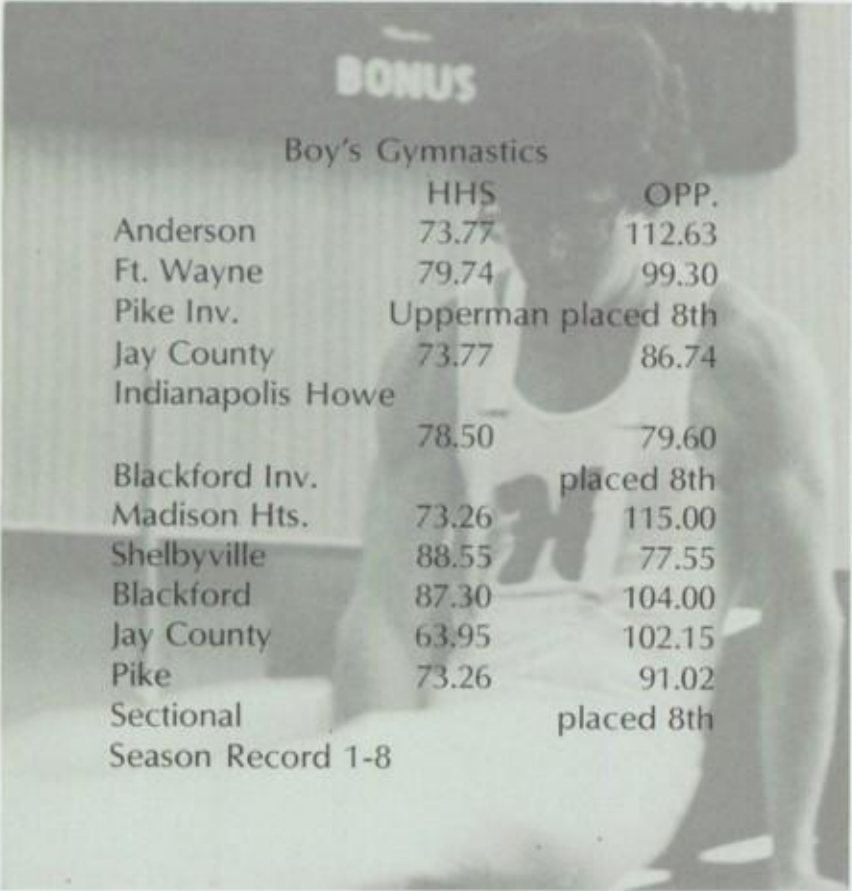

The boy's gymnastics team was "one of the hardest working teams we've ever had. I expect to see some winning next year," noted Coach Maryan. The teams strong points were in the side horse event with Matt Sloan, John Wean, Doug Dubois and Greg Up-perman. "I believe they are one of the best units in the state," added Coach Maryan. Vaulting was also a strong point for the team this year with Dave Colville, Doug Dubois and Greg Up-perman competing in this event. Junior Joe Stanley was also on the vaulting squad until he broke his leg on the trampoline. The squad finished their season with a season record of 1-8.

The Highland girl's gymnastics season opened with a split at Elwood with the Scots winning the beginning level. Leigh Ann Cleaver, Megan Morris and Lori Grider won events in beginning for the Scots while Wendy Kuchler won vaulting and all-round honors in intermediate. Debbie Hullinger also won an intermediate event. When asked about the team's capabilities at the beginning of the season Coach Jeanne Fredericks commented, "I felt quite good. I saw a great deal of potential in the girls. And I believe our strong points were our outstanding Freshman team and their potential as Optional Competitors next year." The girl's beginning team also had a good season and placed well in the Sectional.

Perseverance Prevails

Perseverance kept the boys' track team in a continual state of defeating the opposition despite the odds. "Being a new coach with a new philosophy was adjusted to very well," stated the new coach, Buckie Bookhart, "and I can assume that the guys that stuck it out the whole season really wanted to run and be a part of the Highland track team." Those individuals that worked especially hard were Sophomores Keith Herring, Kendon Hawkins, Junior Brachen McCurdy, and Senior Dan Osburn.

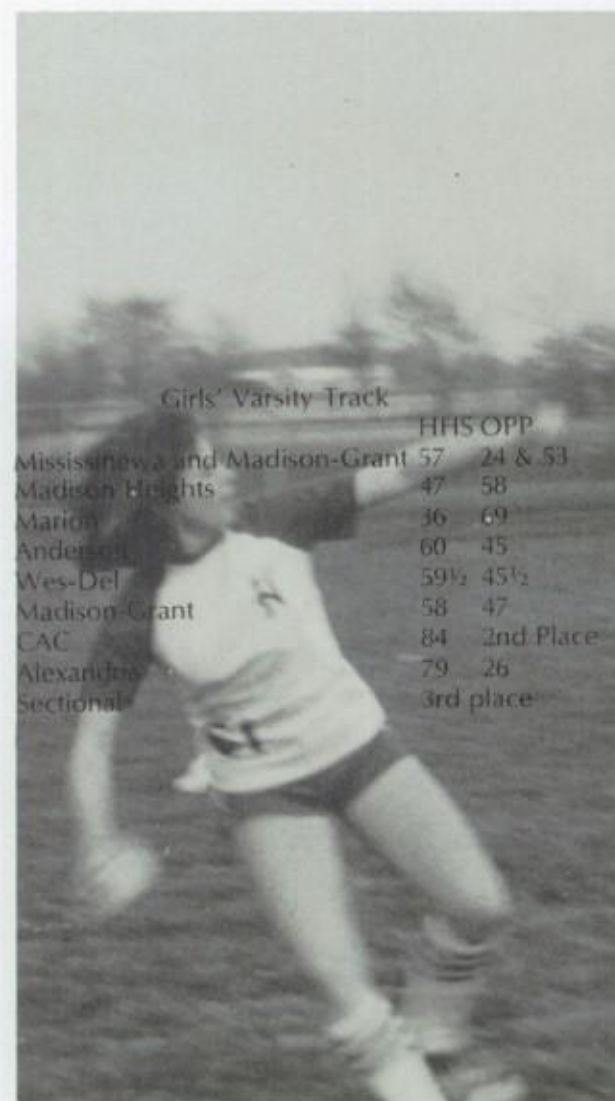

Coach Bookhart also stated that even though the team was potentially respectable, their depth was very shallow. "They worked hard and they can now pat themselves on the back for a job respectfully done, considering the material we had." The boys' track team ended the season with a respectable record.

"The team has come a long way in the past three years and has turned into one of the strongest teams in the area," commented Mrs. Jeanne Fredericks, coach of the 1978 girls' track team. They have only been beaten twice in the past two years. Shortly after the season was under way Coach Fredericks commented, "We have great hopes of winning the conference and possibly the sectional."

In discussing the teams' capabilities Coach Fredericks felt that they would probably do as well as they did in the past. "We basically had everyone back this year that was out last year so I knew that we would probably do well."

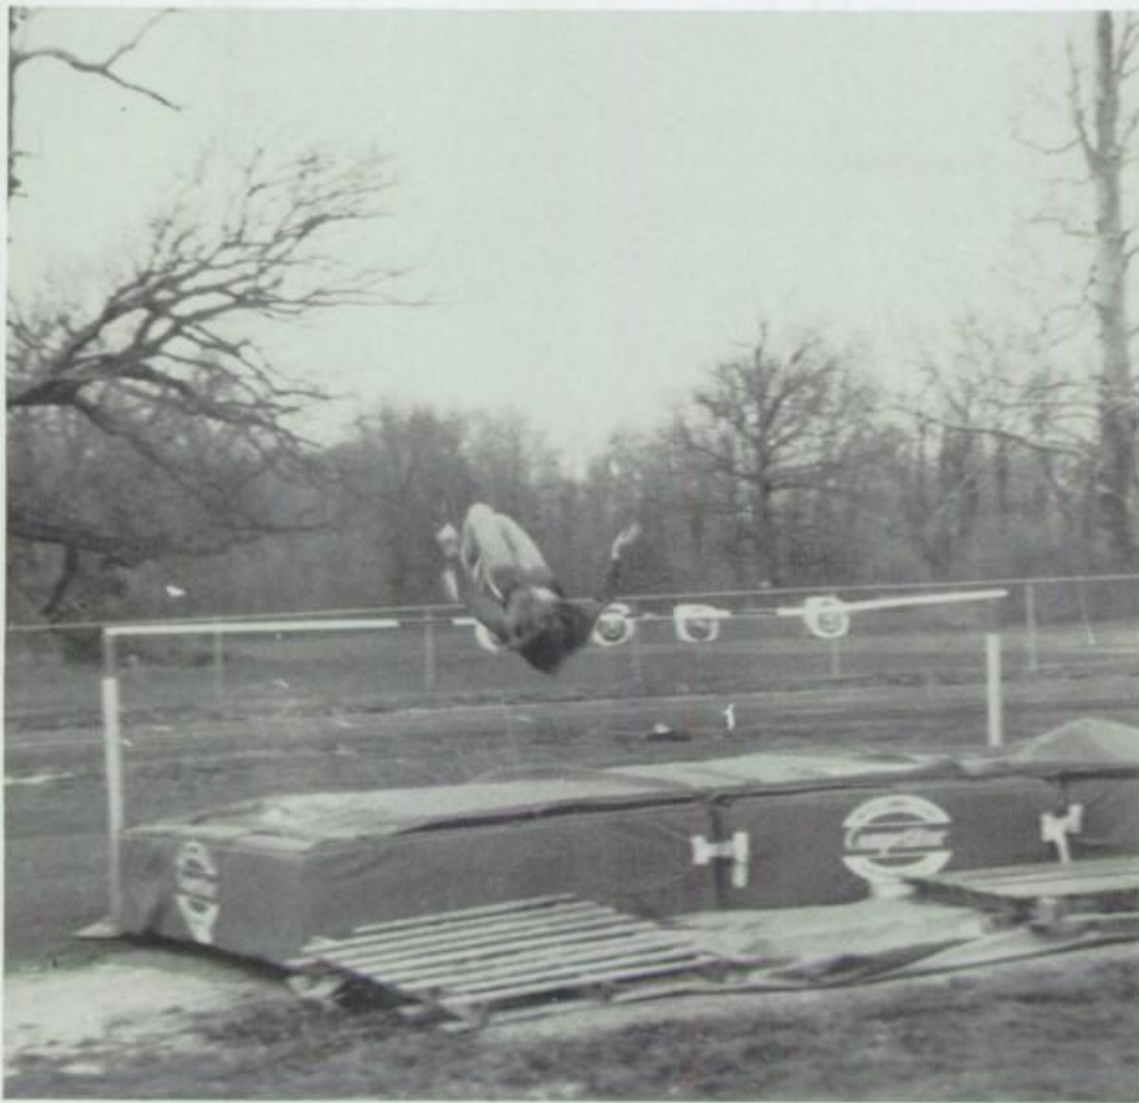

Some of the outstanding girls were Cindy Cogswell, Anita Warner, Carolyn Calhoun, and Tracy Westerman who were sprinters, Judy Knotts who ran the mile, Lisa Van Hook who threw shotput and softball, and Monica Shaw who did the high jump. The girls ended the regular season with a season record of 8-2.

EDUCATIONAL Frustration Proved Educational

"As a group they have a lot of talent but they have little experience," noted Coach John Maryan on the team's capabilities. Though through it all the inexperienced 1978 boys' golf team emerged surprisingly well. But, like the rest of the sports at Highland, the weather has altered most of the games. "The weather has been so bad that you never know when we are going to play," illustrated Coach Maryan.

Despite the weather, three especially good golfers emerged, Gary Delph, Chris Richardson, and Dan James. Coach Maryan noted on the team as a whole, "This is the best group of golfers we have had in 10 years."

The team's toughest meets were Anderson, who they played earlier in the season, and Marion, who they played about half way through the season. The season wrapped up with a final record of 11-3.

"I thought the team as a whole was very strong. We were not weak in any position," stated Coach Ruckman about the 1978 girls' tennis team. Coach Ruckman also went on to say that the year had proved educational for the girls. "The team learned a great deal about not only how to play tennis but also how to play against someone. They also maintained their poise through a couple of hard matches," said Coach Ruckman.

The team's strong points were the top nine individuals who worked especially hard. Debbie Stevenson, however, was our number one player through the season," noted Coach Ruckman.

The toughest team the team met the whole year was Jay County who defeated them 1-6. Coach Ruckman commented on the sectional, "I believe the sectional will be very tough." The team ended the season with a record of 5-4.

Scots Overcome Obstacles

"I felt that this year's team would be very competitive. They are a group of young men who enjoy the game of baseball very much. They would play baseball 24 hours a day. I was very skeptical at the start of the season because we did not have our own diamond or a field to practice on," stated Coach Bob Stecher concerning the varsity baseball team.

Despite the absence of a diamond the Scots had a successful season. When asked what the toughest game was, Coach Stecher mentioned the second Pendleton Heights game. At the time of the game the Arabians were ranked 15th in the state and one game ahead in the conference.

Some of the strong individuals on the team were Larry Tumulty, Jeff Pegg, Monte Parrish, and D.R. Miller. These were the leaders of the team.

"Next year we will have seven seniors to replace that have all done an excellent job. However, I feel we should be just as strong next year," concluded the coach.

TOUGH

At the beginning of the 78 season for the reserve baseball team Coach Jim Teeters knew he had a strong team. Even though the team was deprived because of practice facilities and weather, they worked well despite the difficulties. Three of their toughest games were against Sheridan, Madison Heights and Pendleton Heights. Both Madison Heights and Pendleton games went into extra innings. Even though it was a hard fight to have a winning season the Scots ended with a record of 1-7. Coach Tee-eters is looking forward to next year because he thinks the freshmen are a good strong class.

Special Team Excels Academically

Another team, the skill bowl team an academic rather than athletic one also had a winning season in 1978. The team competed in an academic situation rather than an athletic one. Members of the team needed complete recall in order to compete competently instead of just remembering certain facts.

The competition had five main categories; math, English, science, social studies and art and music. One hundred questions were asked in each meet, twenty from each category, each worth one point.

The two sponsors were Mr. Jim Beane and Ms. Linda Trout. When asked how they thought the team performed this year Ms. Trout replied, "I think that they did an outstanding job this year especially since the two seniors on our team realized their full potential and they will really be missed next year."

The team won approximately three-fourths of the competition and then went on to play in the Delta Invitational Tournament. This was a double elimination tournament in which they defeated Delta, Cowan and Wes Del thus winning the championship.

There were 12 members on the team. The outstanding seniors who were consistently high scorers were Sam Hasler and Dan Osburne.

ACTION

Faithful Backers Support Athletes

The spirit at Highland was once again high. Even though the pep club decreased in number they still showed the traditional Highland spirit. There were approximately 130 girls compared to over 200 last year but according to the pep club sponsor Ms. Richardson, "the smaller number of girls helped the pep club because it is easier to work with less." The reason the pep club had a smaller number of girls was because of the change in the school system. It sent the seventh and eighth graders to East Side and last year there were eighth graders who had already been in and bought sweaters, so they were allowed in pep club again. "This was sort of a phasing out process," stated Ms. Richardson. The pep club was headed by officers Tammy Carter as President, Becky Murphy as Vice-President, Sandy Fisher as Secretary, and Lana Cade as Treasurer. The pep club made money by sponsoring a sock-hop at Homecoming and selling T-shirts, bumper stickers, buttons, hats, candles and representing various other things.

The honor of Highland at all sports events was given to Seniors April Mathias and Mark Browning. They were chosen by Student Council after they wrote an essay on why they wanted to be the mascot.

The cheerleaders had conflicts with other activities, keeping them from having enough girls on the squads. The Varsity and Reserve had more at all times on a squad than in the past. On the Varsity squad there was seven and on the Reserve there was five. They were sponsored by Mrs. Cheryl Fuller. They raffled off a digital clock at Homecoming and sold M&M candy in an effort to raise money to pay for cheerleading camp and to buy new outfits. Varsity cheerleader Cindy Cogswell commented on the summer activities. "We went to camp and we placed in the top ten and were given the honor to compete at the Nationals." The Varsity squad was made up of Senior captain Wendy Moore, juniors Cindy Cogswell, Cindy Bradford, Kelly Williams and sophomores Robin Johnson, Kerri Whitehead and Sanni Csire. The Reserve girls were Robin Vanness, Michele Hawkins, Gina Warfel, Cheri Fenimore and Lori Schattner.

The Essence

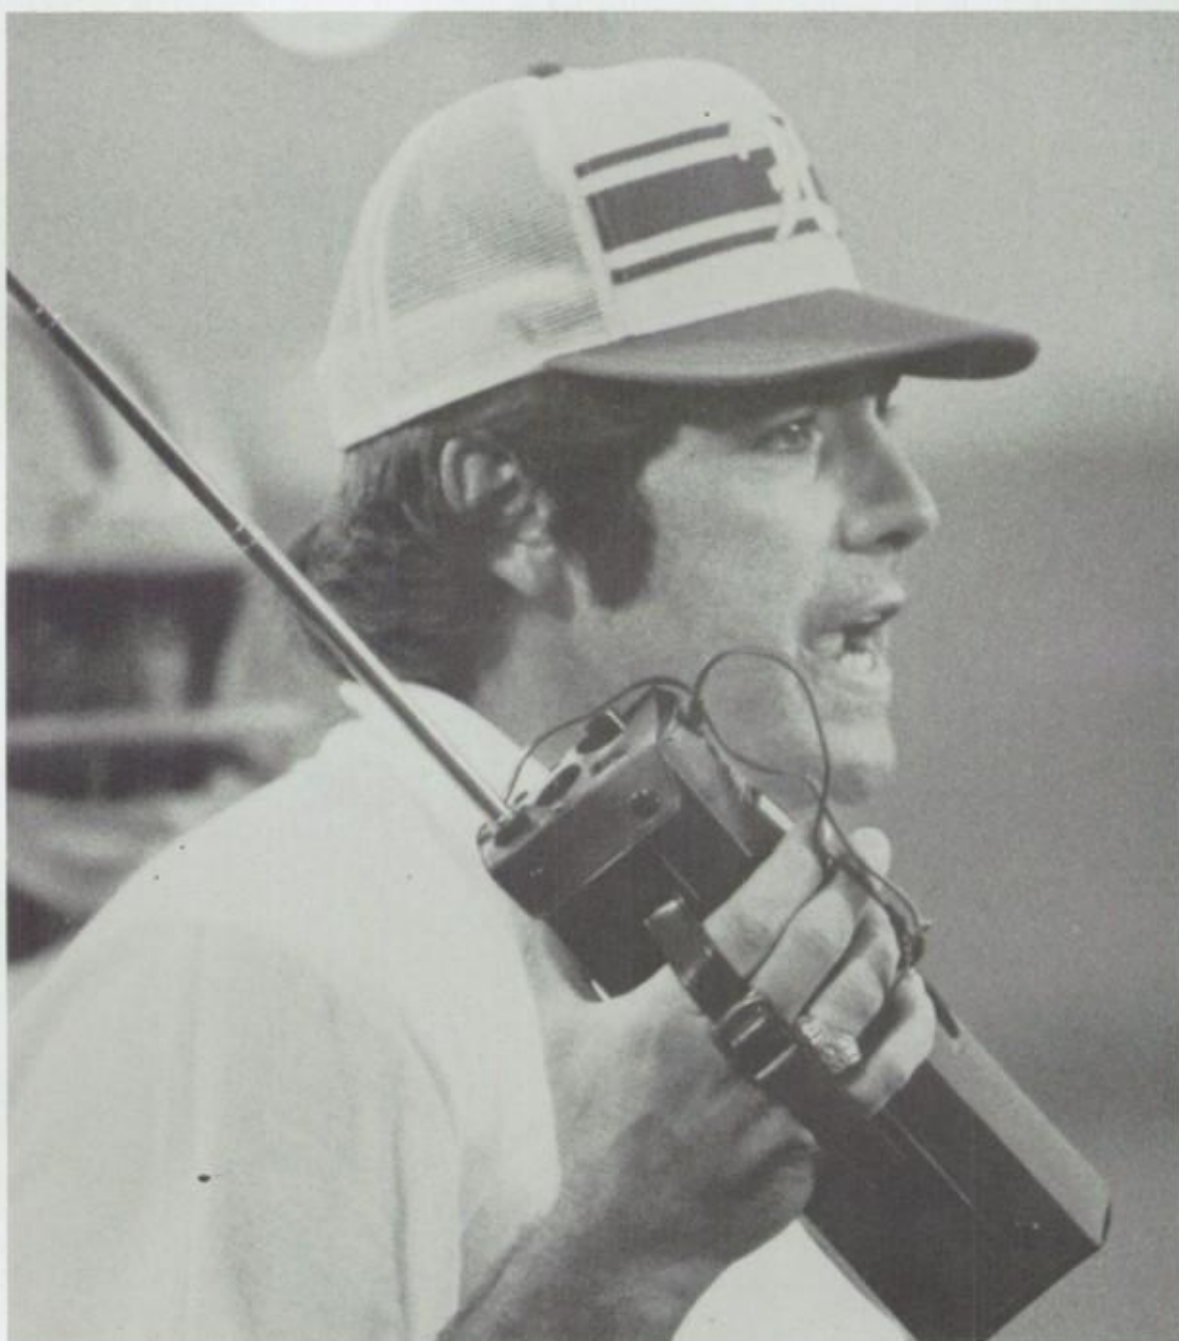

Spirit didn't come easy for the average 77-78 Highland fan. Despite many obstacles making the year difficult, spirit was high through it all. Spirit during the football season was interrupted by the two-week-long teacher's strike, which kept many faculty members away from Friday night games. However, the Scots kept up their spirit by defeating Alexandria for their first time.

Basketball spirit was dampened by the loss of players Richard Kriss and Michael Johnson. The energy crisis kept the spotlights from being used at the pre-game shows. Despite all the problems of the basketball season fans did their best to "Get up for the Scots."

All Highland teams were still the teams with the "pep and the vim."

"With my future planned, I will soon leave this school, but I will always remember with fondness and nostalgic feelings the days I spent talking up a storm in German class."

Learning and Living

According to some senior students, Highland offered classes which helped considerably in planning for their future.

As for clubs, several new and exciting ones were introduced to Highland such as Chess club, Art Projection Society, and Travel club. Even with the addition of new clubs, the number of students involved in club memberships remained about the same.

The English department expanded their curriculum with new classes and 19 teachers. New classes were talked over and selected for upperclassman to take next year if they need a credit in English but do not want to take just grammar and literature.

The new classes on the agenda for next year are "Science Fiction, Myths and Legends," "Tales of the Old West, Mystery," Contemporary Literature, Black Literature," and Creative Writing.

Besides the regular English courses Honors English courses were available to sophomores, juniors, and seniors. "These courses prepare the students for advance placement in college," stated Department head, Mr. Ronald Brown, "Also this year we selected new books for next year."

When asked what they thought about the different English classes students answered, "It's fun, I'm learning alot about authors that I didn't know existed," and, "I like writing so much that I might become an author."

Senator Lugar Visits Highland

History was more than just remembering dates and names. This field covered such classes as modern world civics, psychology, government and urban affairs, plus the basic history courses.

On November 22, the student body had the pleasure of meeting Senator Richard Lugar. Mr. Lugar presented a speech and afterward answered any questions the students had. His speech discussed the energy crisis. He mentioned the oil crisis in the Middle East and the E.R.A. ratification, also.

When asked how he thought the student body reacted towards him, Mr. Lugar replied, "Highland High School has one of the best student bodies I have ever talked to."

Also many guest speakers visited the History classes.

On the lighter side of social studies, Mr. Steve Lay had an Urban Affairs class that he called the "Highland Sweathogs." When asked to comment on this class Mr. Lay replied, "Even though they look and act like the Sweathogs, we still get things done."

So History has become more exciting and diverse. It now involves special projects, guest speakers, debates and visual aids. It lets the student know whats going on in his world today.

Foreign Language Fills the Halls

There were many different languages offered this year. Students heard Latin, Spanish, German, and French when they walked through the west hall.

Besides teaching the language in the classrooms, there were also clubs for the students to join. This way students participated in different activities to help them learn more about foreign language.

The Latin Club had a "get acquainted" party to start off their new year. The club had various fund raising projects including a bake sale at the fall festival. "The club did very good at the bake sale and raised quite a bit of money," said Mrs. Judith Ferhmann. They also went to a Latin Convention at Ball State.

Mrs. Teddy Fatta and Mrs. Karen Davy, were the sponsors for the Spanish Club. In the middle of the year a visitor talked to students during their classes about the foreign exchange program. They hoped to get some foreign exchange recruits from Highland.

The French Club was sponsored by Miss Jane Reams. The club had many fund raising projects along with a few parties. The club went to Foreign Language Days at Ball State to observe different classes. They also went to a French restaurant in Indianapolis November 30 to see a troupe of German performers, sing, dance, and perform short German skits. Miss Karen Claypool sponsored another club this year, the Travel Club.

"We take anyone who wants to join," said Miss Claypool, "The students work on various money raising projects to go to Europe. It costs each student $1,300.00 to go for five weeks."

The Art Department grew into its new department and did more things than ever before. Classes were offered in basic art, drawing, crafts, photography, ceramics, painting and a new addition, was jewelry.

"The students did very well this year and we put out a number of very good artists," said Mrs. Peggy Richards, department head, "They are making some very elegant pieces of art."

The Art classes journeyed to Chicago, May 19. They went to the Art Institute, Museum of Contemporary Art, and two art schools, The American Academy of Art and The Art Academy. The students also visited John David Mooney's Art Studio. Mr. Mooney had been an Artist in resident at Anderson College earlier in the year.

A new club was also started, the Art Projection Society, which was sponsored by Mrs. Ditzenberger. The club took small trips and had guest speakers visit them after school.

NEW YORK: Here We Come!

Two Drama classes were a part of the 77-78 schedule, one class for beginning drama students and the other for advanced drama students. "The only requirement needed to get into these classes was an interest in acting and my signature," stated Mr. Clark.

There were 44 students involved in the drama classes. Each class put on its own one act play. Then actors out of both classes tried out for the Spring and Fall plays and the best actors were casted in the plays.

The New York Trip that Mr. Clark and five students went on was the major trip of the year. Other field trips included a trip to the Indianapolis Museum of Art. Then trips to see the productions of the Anderson College Theatre, like Godspell were made.

Mr. Clark, and five students, Rick Pitts, Scott Ramsey, Kelly Batie, Kevin Robinson and Tyrone Walton left for New York on Jan. 12 and returned on the 19.

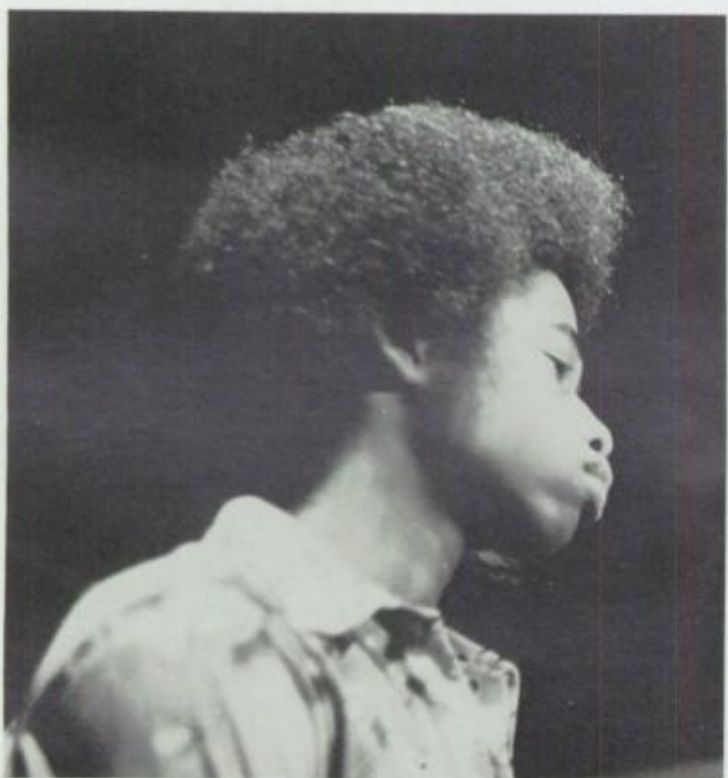

While in New York, the group went to see eight plays in their six day tour. Productions included, A Chorus Line, Dracula, The Wiz and The Fantastics to name a few. Students were even able to meet and get autographs from some of the stars.

Some of the stars that the group met or saw were famous actors and actresses from the stage as well as television. A few were, Farrah Fawcett, Majors, Lyn Redgrave, Yull Brennar, Franklin Jella and Peggy Cass.

"This year has been the best ever," replied Mr. Clark when asked what he thought about the year, "We have had good response from the student body with sell-outs for our plays. Also, the plays have been excellent and I hope for another good year in 79."

Library and Special Ed Classes Offer Different Types of Education

Sonja Coffman, Librarian, three years at H.H.S., M.A. in English and Library Science.

Toni Overman, Librarian, four years at H.H.S., B.S. M.A.E. in Business Ed. and Library Science.

Sarah Withrow, Special Ed. one year at H.H.S., B.S. in Special Education currently working on Masters.

The library was constantly changing this year. With shipments of several thousand dollars worth of books and replacing worn out audio visual equipment, our librarians were kept busy throughout the year.

Mrs. Toni Overman and Mrs. Sarah Coffman supervised the library until both left in December for pregnancy leave. "The library is like a classroom," stated Mrs. Overman, "Here we teach students how to use the different files and materials."

Along with the book and magazine section of the library, the audio visual room offered students different educational experiences. Here all film strips, slides, tape recordings, video tapes, and even micro film were stored.

There were four student assistants each hour that helped the librarians check out books, stock shelves and keep track of the equipment in the audio visual room. "This gives them the experience of working in a library," stated Mrs. Coffman, "Also without them we would never get anything done."

Construction on the new library began in January. It will probably be finished in two years. The library will hold 10% of the schools enrollment.

The students had access to all available material in the library. "The one big problem is that it's too small to let us grow," said Mrs. Coffman, "But with the building of the new library we will be able to accomodate more students, and equipment. There will also be a room of the library where a class can study away from the other students who are using the library but the classes will also have access into the library."

Another special class offered was Special Ed and Learning Disability. "This was the second year for Special Ed department and the first year for Learning Disability class. Mrs. Sarah Withrow was the full time teacher. This new class was a new requirement this year under government regulations.

Mrs. Withrow has been teaching for two years. Her first year she taught nursery school for Special Ed. This has been her first year with high school age students.

"This class is here for the students who aren't able to learn as fast as a stereotyped student. They are just like everyone else. Their only difference is that they must work at their own rate and with more individual attentions," explained Mrs. Withrow, "These special kids have much the same capabilities, but we must find a different outlet for their responses."

The Special Ed Program includes, Freshmen, Sophomores, and Junior classes. By law each class can have no more than 15 students. The classes include Math, English, Learning Disability class and Science, which is team taught by Mrs. Withrow and science instructor Mr. John Maryan.

Home Ec. Appeals to Both Sexes

The home economics department has grown in the last few years and is no longer just a cooking and sewing class. Consumer advocate, human relations, family life and child development classes were offered in '78 to help students once they are away from their parents.

Home economics has grown in versatility and now appeals to both sexes. Mrs. Martha Lallathin, head of the home economic department, commented, "I like to think of this course for both girls and boys. I encourage boys to take the classes. It will help them when they are living away from home or when they are married just like a girl."

Home economics is also recommended highly as an elective course. Classes are offered for just one semester as well as for a full year. The home economic department also had the pleasure of entertaining the North Central Committee when they were here two weeks before spring break. It was also the location for a press conference with Senator Richard Lugar on November 22. "We haven't done as many special projects as I would have liked to, but more are planned for the future," continued Mrs. Lallathin.

The teachers in the department besides Mrs. Lallathin included Mrs. Bonnie Dickerson, Miss Mary Lawler and Mrs. Lois Utterback. Each teacher was assigned to their special interest in this field to add a higher level of competence and interest to the teaching.

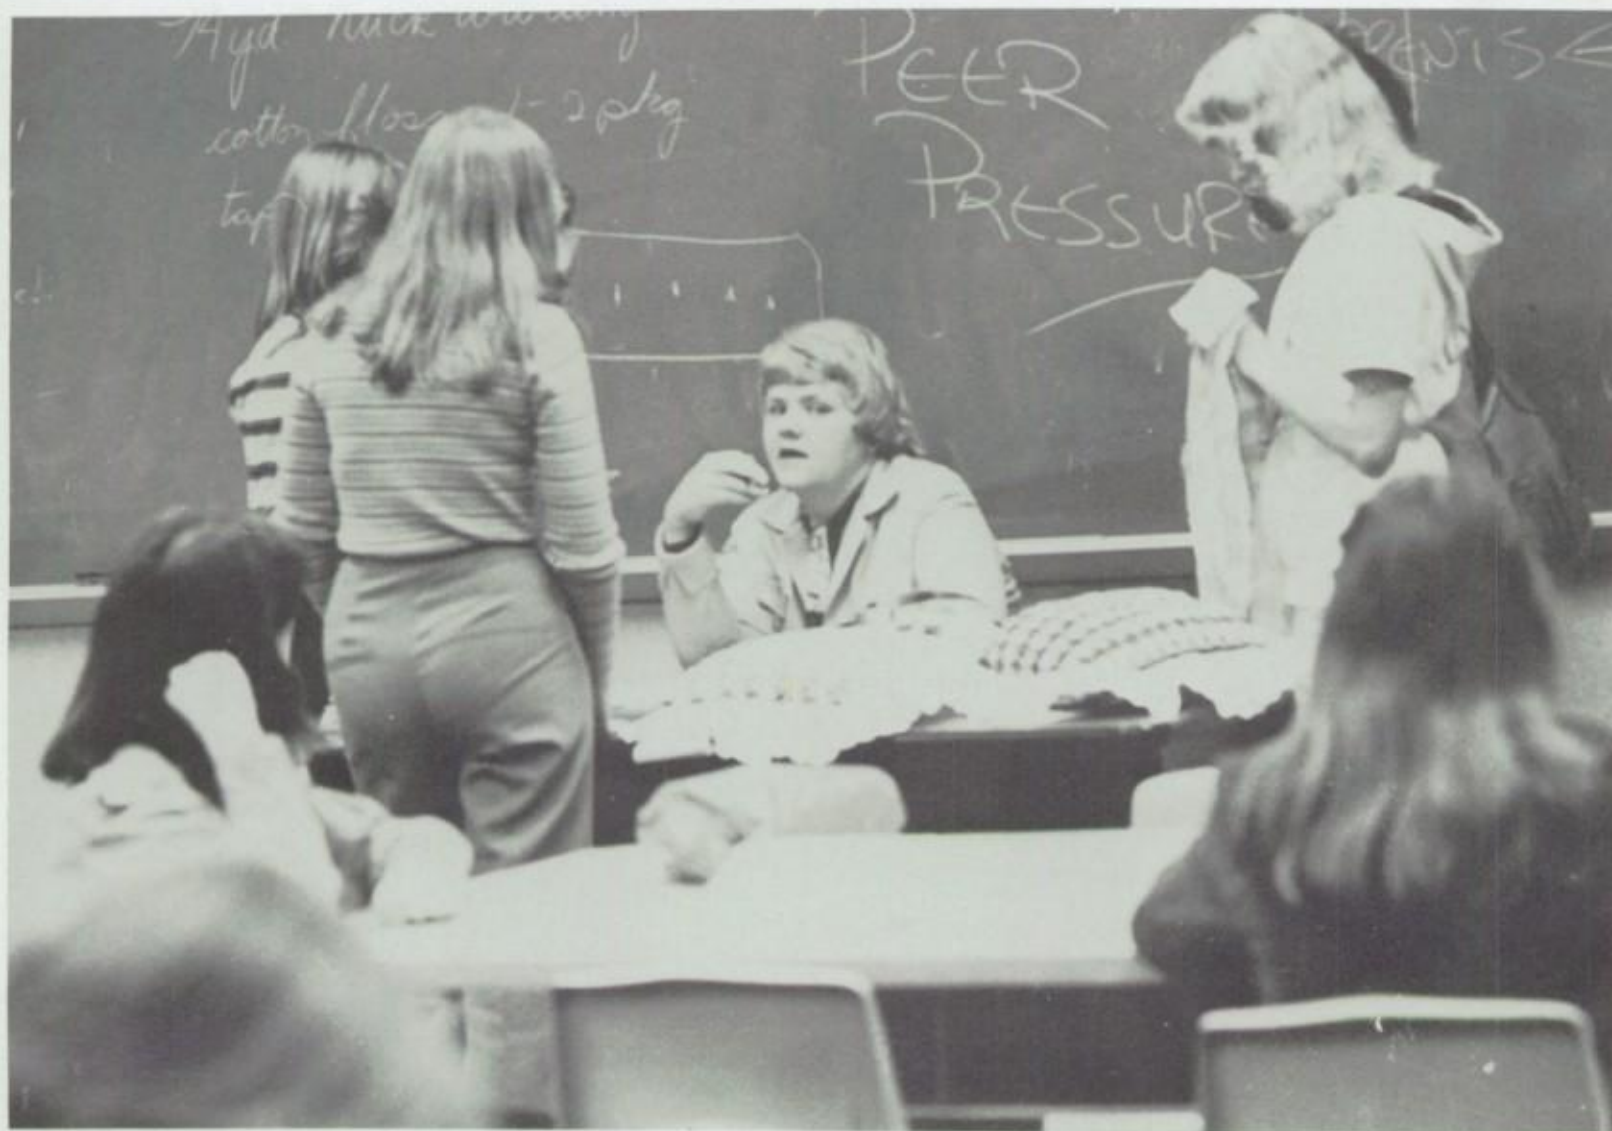

The subjects taught last year were, cooking, sewing, needlework, child development, family planning and consumer advocate. The knowledge in these areas help the students to know what to expect from the world when they are on their own.

Business Offers Work Experience

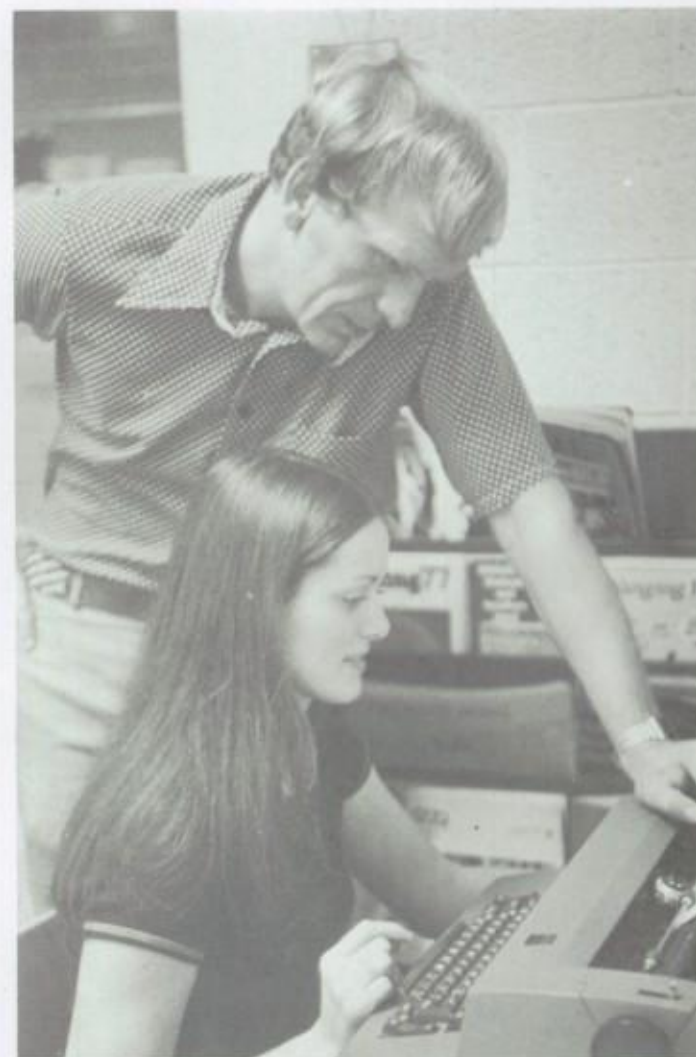

The business department grew last year with the expansion of the work programs at Highland. Besides the ICE program there was the COE, ACE, ICT, and OWE programs.

"The ICE program was designed for small schools and since we grew, more programs were designed to help the students, said coordinator Mr. Larry Forrest. There is still ICE for the foods and health fields, but the others were put into special categories."

The COE program involved the students interested in business office positions such as secretary, business manager, and bookkeeper.

The ICT program, Industrial Cooperative Training included metal works and drafting fields. The ACE program (Ag-business) deals with the agriculture and farming fields.

The OWE program, Occupational Work Experience offered different jobs such as pumping gas, working in department stores. "Before these students get into these programs we have to find jobs for them," said Mr. Forrest, "Most of our time is spent finding suitable jobs for them. These jobs will give them the practical work experience they need to have in order for them to get a good job for themselves when they graduate from Highland in the spring."

As one walks through the science wing there is a familiar odor of formaldehyde and chemicals present. With dissections and experiments, these smells were very common.

Along with the basic courses there were three new courses offered. These included earth science, anatomy and physiology and environmental science. Also new equipment for labs was purchased by the department.

"The Science department as a whole is trying to make the classes as interesting as possible," explained Mr. James Ruckman, "The department receives new equipment to help the students understand the experiments better. But most of the scientific equipment is quite expensive."

Also biology, general science, physical science, zoology, chemistry and physics were offered. Most classes dealt with labs and understanding scientific equations. Others, though, taught the students more about the world in which they live.

Answers to Problems in Math Solved

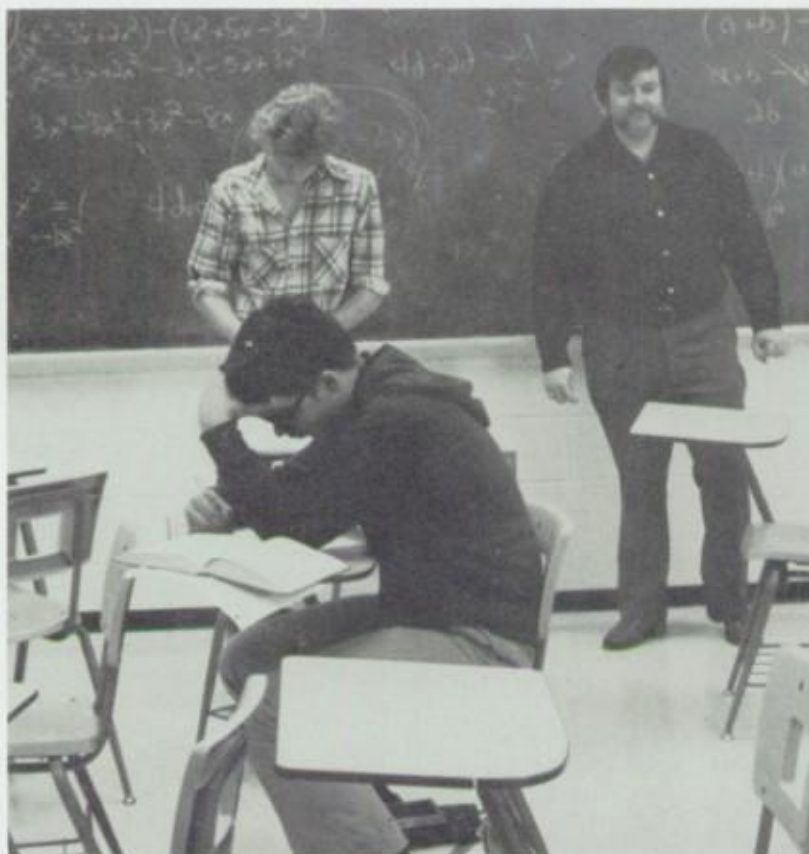

Finding the right answer is always a problem during math classes and this year was no exception. From basic math to calculus and trigonometry solving the problem was only half the process. One also needed to understand how the answer was achieved.

Head of the department was Mr. Greg Risk, "The classes offered were generally the same as last year," commented Mr. Risk, "The student must learn to think and solve the problem on his own. But teachers are always there to give a helping hand when needed."

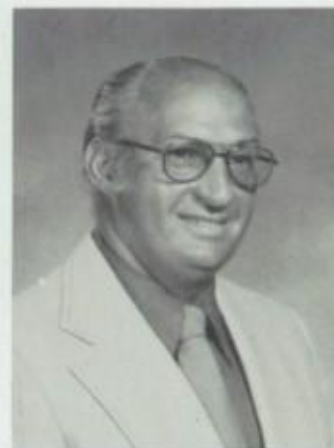

The math classes offered were basic math, general math, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, calculus, statistics and probability and analysis. Math also was the basic course needed to go into some science classes. Math gives the information needed to be able to solve scientific equations.

Jeanne Fredericks—Physical Ed., BS., 2 years at H.H.S. Girls' gymnastics and track coach.

1, 2, 3, turn left, clap ... familiar sounds such as these came from the commons area as girls learned modern dance. Modern dance was taught to all girls in gym classes including all freshman through senior girls for a full six weeks.

The dance used the song "Boogie Nights" by Heatwave. "It is hard work to learn dance," commented Trena Hooper, "We keep watching the routine over and over again until we get it right." Mrs. Barbara Conrad and Jeanne Fredericks danced with the girls to show them how the routine should work.

Other classes in the P.E. department that were co-educational were P.E. and advanced P.E. Activities taught in these classes were tennis, golf, archery, softball, soccer, football, wrestling, conditioning, tumbling, volleyball, modern dance, field hockey, team handball, apparatus, badminton and gymnastics. These courses taught the students how to play by the rules and develop coordination.

Next year there is a course on the schedule for a special P.E. for those students with permanent medicals. This teaches the students how to do things even if they cannot do them themselves at the time.

Body Functions Studied in Health Classes

Muscles, bones, nerves and the respiratory system were the major areas study taught in freshman health classes. The study centered on the main body functions rather than general health care.

These classes covered areas students had not studied in junior high. After students studied the body's systems, they discussed social diseases. All health classes were co-educational.

Guest speakers were also a part of the curriculum. Speakers discussed topics including drugs, venereal diseases and health careers.

"There are a lot of jobs available in health careers, stated Mrs. Womer, "If the student is interested we have the information to get them started on their career."

Health classes offered were 9th grade health, 10th grade health and physiology and drugs. This course was offered to seniors only, with an A or B average and the chairman's signature.

Vocational School Prepares Students For Work

The Anderson Area Vocational School offered students learning experiences involving skills and trades. The students spent half of the day at H.H.S. in regular classroom situations and the other half in a class-laboratory.

These classes help to train the students in specified areas. After graduating from the Vocational school, students are ready to work in a certain vocation.

The center trains them in such skills as data processing, business skills, mechanics and construction. These skills enable the students to have a good job once they graduate from high school. There were 52 students enrolled in vocational school from Highland.

Shakey Hands Identify Drivers Ed Teachers

Shakey hands, nervous twitches, and hands covering their eye's identified many drivers ed. teachers. The new drivers varied from being too cautious to practicing for the Indy 500.

Sophomore students were allowed to learn to drive and receive a credit towards their graduation at the same time.

Students took a three step course to receive a drivers permit. If the student completed the requirements and was a good driver, they received a wavier. The only further requirement was then to take the written test at the License Bureau.

The three steps were thirty hours in the class room, three hours in the car and time in the simulators. The student had to complete each step with passing grades and show the instructor that he or she could handle a car efficiently and safely.

"For the most part I enjoy drivers ed. but sometimes it scares me to death," commented a student, "Like one time when our car was in the middle of an intersection and the person driving decided to stop. Which resulted in being barely missed by an oncoming car."

Choir Means Hard Work and Practice

Hard work, practice, and concerts made up the '78 schedule. The five choirs had an hour each day and a few practices after school.

There were two concert choirs, including tenth through twelfth graders only and the students had to audition to get in. Mixed chorus was open for ninth through eleventh graders and ninth grade choir was also an open course. In these courses, auditions were not required. Highland Singers included tenth through twelfth graders who auditioned. Approximately twenty singers were selected. Also there was a small band that played with the singers.

The choir department started out with a fall concert. After that the energy crisis caused the winter concerts to be cancelled. But in the first of December all the choirs were able to go to the surrounding grade schools to perform concerts.

The annual Musicale was on May 17 & 18. The musical was put on by the concert choir and Highland Singers. Musicale was a large variety show with the theme built around the fresh feeling of spring. The songs ranged from pop to sacred music. There were also many comedy skits and faculty participation.

Also planned for this summer was a camp for Highland Singers. "This is a way for the students to get to know each other," replied Mr. Randy Greene, "Once the students know each other it is easier for them to work together. This has been a fresh young group and I feel this year has gone very well."

Band Grows Through Changes

Determination, long hours, discipline and a lot of teamwork kept the band moving and in competition even though it lacked a band director till the first of July. The summer program kept the band active as it was run by the upperclassmen.

Mr. John Parshal, Mr. Jon Gilliland, and Mrs. Sarah Withrow were the new directors and choreographer that joined the band last summer. A week after their arrival the band traveled to Kokomo to participate in parade competition.

The band received a third at the parade and then went into training for a field competition in Zanesville, Ohio on October 1. After the weekend of the trip the band returned with a fourth place trophy from the competition.

The annual solo and ensemble contest was held February 11. Thirteen events received first place and progressed to the state contest in Indianapolis. Out of the thirteen, eight received first at State.

The band then concentrated on the concert competition that was held on April 22 and Plaid and White which was held April 28 & 29. "The band got back into the marching competition but the weather really hurt our concerts that had been scheduled," commented Mr. John Parshal, "The band's young and has developed rapidly both as a marching and concert unit."

Also the Pipe & Drum corps, that makes the band unique, participated with the band and on their own. The corps went to Angola for the International Student Festival to lead a Parade on April 15. Also they went to Indy for W I B C's twelve days of Christmas. The eleven pipers piping were in one window and twelve drummers drumming in the next. "During this year the pipe and drum corps has improved their playing 100% since the beginning of the year," said Mr. Jon Gilliland.

The majorettes under the instruction of Mrs. Sarah Withrow led the band and performed dance routines to enhance the performances. There was one basic unit with three parts, front line baton's sword carriers, and flag carriers.

"They have developed tremendously and I have let the girls do more of the routine themselves and help them learn from their mistakes," said Mrs. Withrow. The majorettes held a Spring Fashion show sponsored by Brooks. The girls did all the modeling themselves with hair designs by Mrs. Cathy Hopper of Atrium Salon.

New Facilities Help Programs Expand

Henry Cook—Industrial Arts, BS., MAE., 4 years at H.H.S.

Brian Hildebrand—Drafting BS., MA., 9 years at H.H.S.

Joseph F. Jackson—Industrial Arts, BS., MA., 9 years at H.H.S.

Students who were interested in hobbies or a career that enabled them to work with their own hands and create individual, personal projects found the industrial arts department a perfect outlet for their talents. Both female and male students were given a chance to enroll in industrial arts.

The industrial arts field ranged from woods drafting and metals to electricity and energy systems. Over 37% of the student body was enrolled in this area. With this many students the department soon began to need more room than the three rooms currently in use.

In order to accommodate the extreme interest, the department will be expanding with new rooms when the new construction is finished. This will provide better facilities and newer equipment for the students.

Students also were given initiative to work hard, so that they might have a chance for the Rotary Club Award. This award was given to seniors who completed and achieved the highest grades in eight different areas of industrial art.

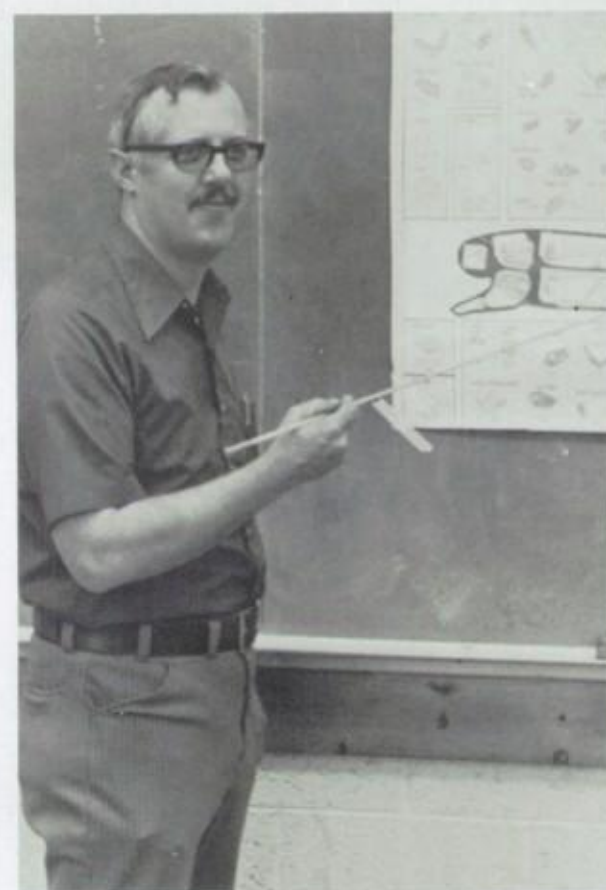

The industrial art classes trained students for further schooling, a career or possibly just a hobby. Mr. Hildabrand head of the department stated, "Industrial art classes have a great value in a students career and it gives them a better understanding of the world around them."

Another course that enabled students to use their hands was Agribusiness. Many of the activities that agribusiness students participated in took place outside the school because of their nature. These activities included livestock and soil judging.

After reviewing this departments progress over the past years Mr. James Taylor head of agribusiness department stated, "The last 12 out of 15 years our soil judging team has been number one." The students on the 1978 team were Tom Minge, Ann Eliason, Randy Kardatzke, and Larry Wylman.

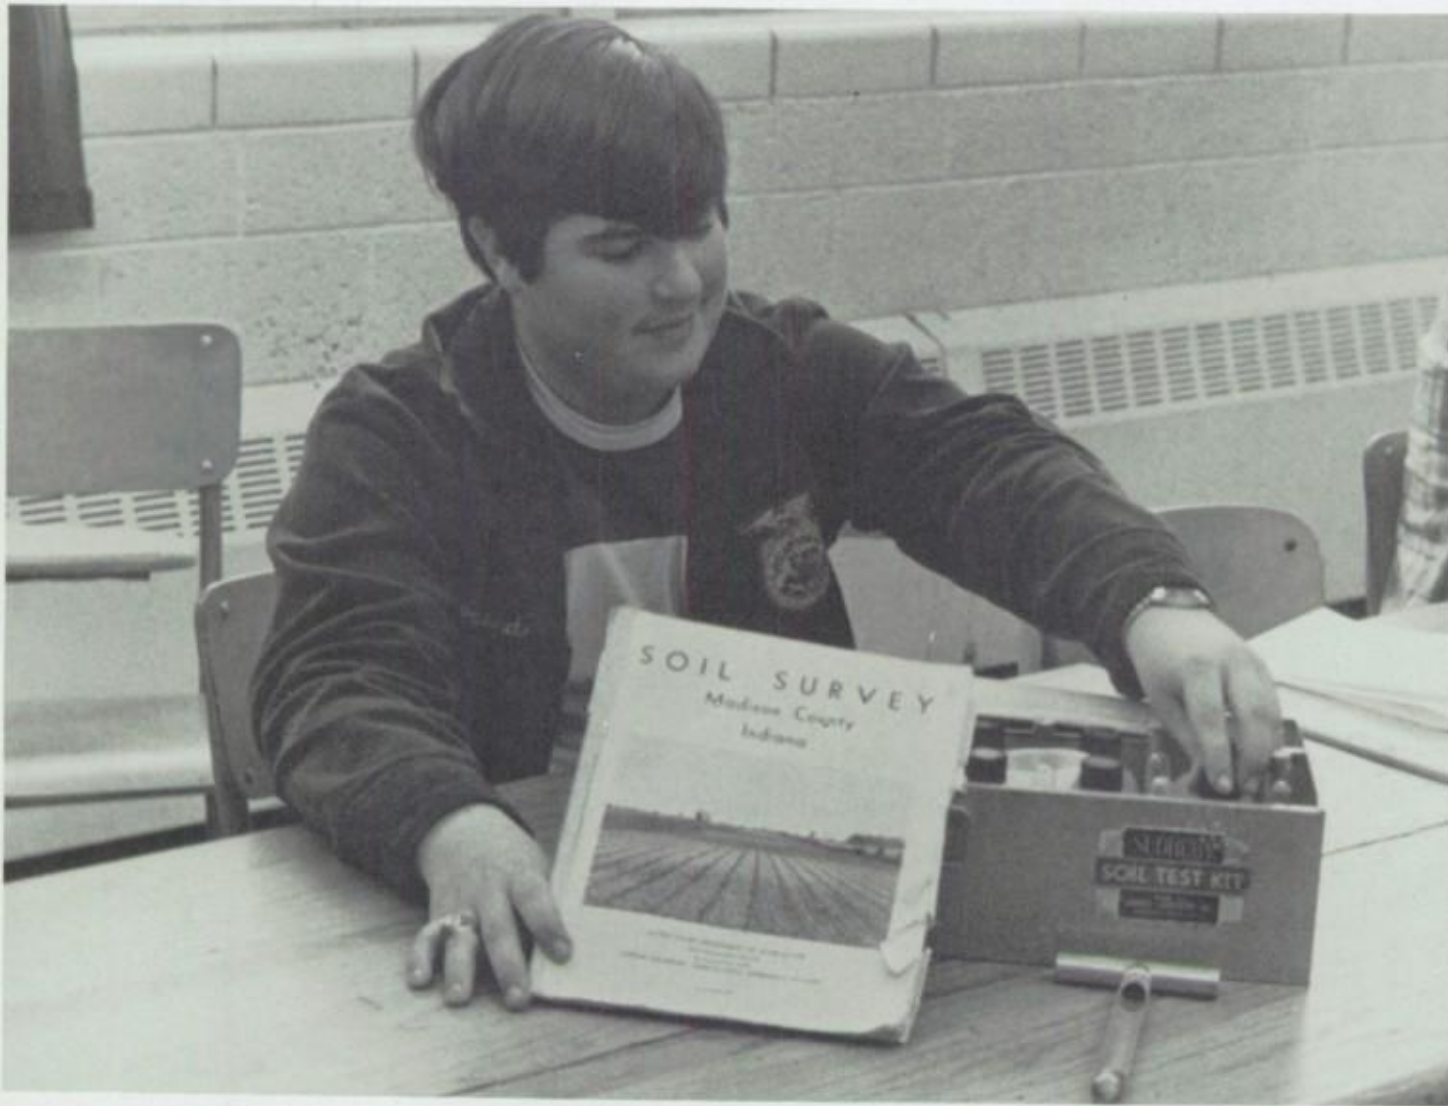

Beyond classroom activities and judging the agribusiness classes visited the Indianapolis farm bureau on Wednesday, April 12. Out of the 59 students studying this field, several may have decided to go on with it as a career. "The classes were more general than technical," said Mr. Taylor, "About 40% of the students go into Agribusiness as a profession, but the knowledge of lawn use and development and chemical application can be used by students throughout the rest of their lives."

Students Communicate Through Publications

Smooth sailing described the activities in room 16 best. The Tartan and Yearbook staffs both based their operations from there. The staffs remained calm and professional most of the time as they met their assigned deadlines.

Tartan was a bi-weekly news magazine put out by a staff of 16 students. The editor was April Mathias, managing editor Jenny Pitts and advisor Mrs. Joan Duc. "Tartan has been a lot of hard work this year but also has been very exciting and hopefully a valuable learning experience for each student involved," commented Mrs. Duc.

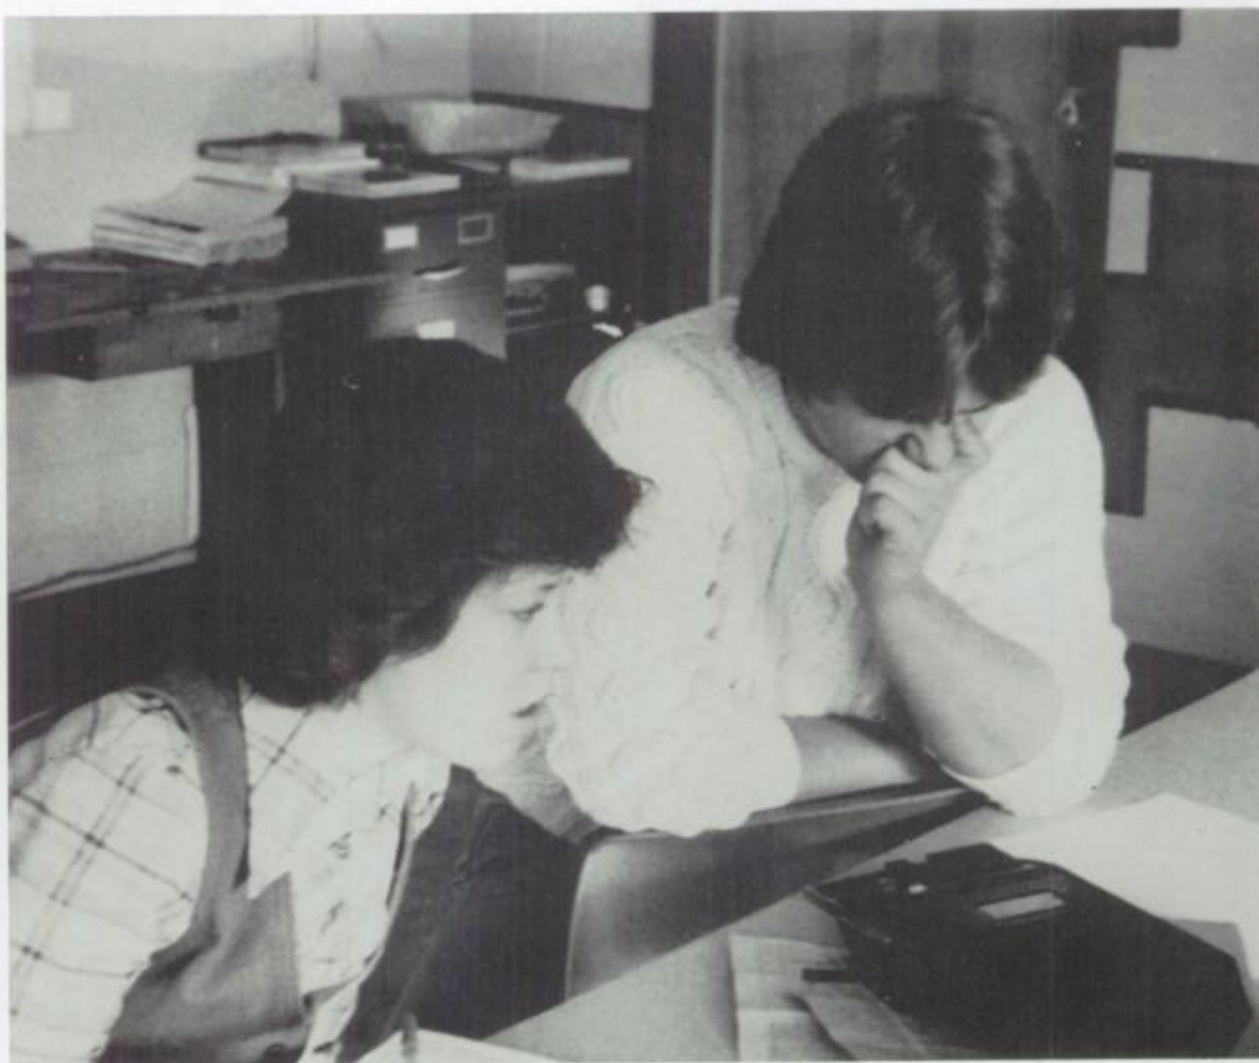

Yearbook is a 224 page book put together to help students relive the past year. The editor was Rose Cornwell, managing editor Debbie Hullinger. The advisor Mrs. Duc commented, "Yearbook involves long hours and constant pressure. This year the most important factor for our success has been a high quality staff with everyone working to their potential."

Other publication and Journalism classes included Newswriting, Publicity, which involves sending student written stories about H.H.S. to local newspapers and Mass Communications which examines how mass media affects students lives. Newswriting must be taken before the student is eligible for Tartan or Yearbook.

Communicate: Speech Department Develops

The speech and debate class has developed through the enthusiasm of Ms. Stephanie Richardson. The speech class has been in existence for four years but this year it has gained greater attention.

The speech and debate team was also sponsored by Ms. Richardson. "There were two or three meets held this year but our team wasn't able to participate due to the weather," stated Ms. Richardson.

The first semester deals with building the students self confidence. The second semester mostly deals with group discussion. It also examines body language and how to use it while giving a speech.

"The speech class helps a lot with the speech and debate team but it is not necessary if you have a lot of determination to get up and give speeches and work hard," commented Ms. Richardson. The speech program is growing and next year there are plans to have two speech classes instead of one.

Students Recognized For Ability

Several organizations annually honor outstanding student's scholastic ability. Athletic ability, creativity and dependability are all criteria that establish standards for such honorary organizations.

Honor Society inducted a record breaking 57 students. Honor Society was for juniors and seniors with a scholastic rating of 3.3. Tapping ceremonies ended in 1976 and 77, so the students were informed by letter that they had been chosen. Although they were not recognized by the whole student body, the honor became a personal and family one.

On April 4 the induction ceremony and spring banquet was held. After the new members were inducted Honor Society consisted of 72 members. Mr. Lilburn Gilliam and Miss Evelyn Hissey were the two sponsors. Honor Society officers were, President, Marcus Smith; Vice-President, Robin Stanley; Secretary, Belinda Maines; and Treasurer, Louis Maillet.

Outstanding journalism students were honored by being inducted into Quill and Scroll. Quill and Scroll is the equivalent of Honor Society for journalism students.

Mrs. Joan Duc, Mr. Ronald Brown and Ms. Linda Trout selected the students that they felt deserved the honor. The induction banquet was held on May 17 at the Holiday Inn and 19 students were inducted.

The requirements for Quill and Scroll were three semesters of Journalism, outstanding Journalism achievement and recommendation by an advisor.

Mr. Pat McKeand of the Anderson Newspaper was the guest speaker at the banquet. He discussed Journalism as a career and his own extensive journalism experiences.

Another group that was honored, not by teachers but by their fellow students is executive council. Vigorous campaigning for main offices in executive council was the first step in order to become a member. Each class voted for a president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and a girl and boy representative to represent them in executive council.

After the elections the council became an active organization. They were in charge of dances, memorials and keeping the student body informed. The officers were Bob Jackson, President; Rose Cornwell, Vice President; Robin Stanley, Secretary and Christy Ellis, Treasurer.

Some special duties that executive council performed included: helping with open house, arranging homecoming and helping the North Central Committee in its evaluation March 13 thru the 17.

The executive committee was also in the middle of revising the old constitution at the end of the year. The end of the year brought election of new officers, Brachen McCurdy, Mark Heiniger, Cheri Fenimore and Mark Parrish and new goals. The new year, 78-79 would mean revising the constitution, reorganization and coping with concerns of a larger school and increased enrollment.

Administration Keeps Highland Going Smoothly

The School Board and administration have overcome many problems this year. After a teacher's strike, IHSAA probation, and other less major problems, the school finally settled down and the business of educating 1700 students got underway.

The superintendent of schools was Dr. Harold Gallagher. Members of the school board were Mr. Kenneth McClure, President; Mr. William Catlin Whitehead, Vice President; Mrs. Dorothy Moore, Secretary; Mrs. Josephine Ragland, Assistant Secretary; Mr. John Hodson, board member; Mr. Ray Turner, board member; and Mr. James R. Wallace, board member.

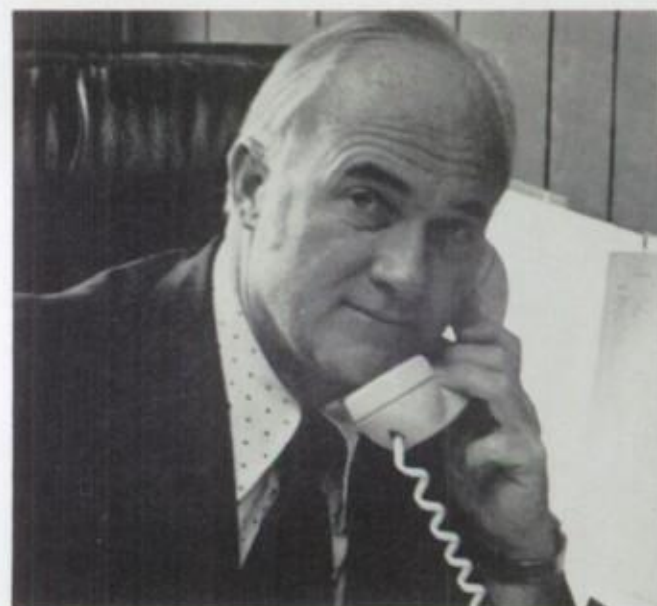

Board members approved a five million dollar plan to expand Highland. Improvements included an expanded Physical Education department, a Library, and Swimming pool. Also planned were expansions for classrooms. The building started in January and should be finished in two years.

"The objective is to bring Highland up to the standards of the surrounding schools," said Mr. Austin, principal. Also in the administration department, one new counselor, Mr. Fred VanNess traded schools with Mr. Marvin Atkins, who had been at Highland for seven years. We had new teachers come in to replace the ones we lost and new teachers adding 11 new faculty members to the staff.

Mr. VanNess had spent ten years at North Central Junior High, Park Place, and Brentwood. The administration had counselors for all students. They were there to counsel the students about college and their chosen vocation.

Security Officers Added To Highland

Mr. Bill Howard and Mr. Ron Rheams were the two security officers of the Anderson Community School Corporation assigned to the Highland district. Their jobs were to assist in the smooth operation of the school.

The two officers also were personally involved with students. They were free to talk to any student and offer their personal advice to help with any problems the students had. Beyond their official duties they also helped the students understand their rights, Indiana's history and police work by going into different history classes and giving lectures.

Mr. Howard and Mr. Rheams also helped students who were interested in police work as a career. They recommended them for the summer Indiana State Police Kiwanis Career Camp at Lafayette.

Beyond this, Mr. Howard and Mr. Rheams both seemed very dedicated and involved with not only their official duties, but with lives and concerns of students at Highland.

Secretaries

Another group that was responsible for order and organization was the secretarial staff. The headache of scheduling classes, typing permanent records, helping frustrated parents and making sure students get the classes they wanted and needed were among the secretarial duties. They also helped the administrators corelate their work and helped with registration.

The secretaries included six regular secretaries, two senior student receptionists that were on the ICE program and students each hour to help them with the less difficult tasks. The secretaries were Mrs. Audrey Ashby, Mrs. Carolyn Richardson, Mrs. Jo Ballentine, Mrs. Jean Deaton, Mrs. Ardene Kreegar and Mrs. Dorothy Sylvester.

The organization of books and records took many hard working efficient people. Through the cooperation of everyone the 78 school year went by with a limited amount of difficulties.

A Look At Unseen People

What would the school be like without the cooks, custodians and bus drivers? "We'd starve to death or have to bring our lunches," "The school would be condemned," "Highland would look like a garbage dump," "We'd have to drive to school," "We wouldn't have enough parking spaces," and "There would be a traffic jam every morning," were some of the answers students gave when asked about it. Have you ever realized how many behind the scenes people it takes to run Highland? It takes a great deal of time and effort to keep Highland at its full operating potential.

The cook's responsibility is seeing that all students have a good hot lunch at school. It took the cooks from 6:45 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. to prepare and the clean up each day. There were five students employed in the kitchen during school. The students were; Judy Knotts, Mike Taylor, Scott Johnson, Tom Peak and Phil Hughes.

The kitchen was not only a place for "Slaving over a hot stove for 90% of the approximately 1700 students," but also an exhibit of school spirit and enthusiasm. "Most of the people in the kitchen have relatives that go to Highland so they care about the students and the things that take place in the school," said Mrs. LeAnn Gooding the dietician at Highland. Various signs, posters and decorations could be seen in the kitchen for such school events as sectional and football games also. Their plaid smocks spurred spirit as they served their meals.

Another group helpful in sustaining order in the school were the custodians. Those paper-wad hook shots that always seemed to miss the waste basket and the gum wrappers that were thrown on the floor seemed to mysteriously disappear during the night. The rooms seemed to clean themselves but really there is an excellent custodian team that keeps Highland spotless day and night.

Two shifts work at Highland from 6:00 a.m. to 11:00 p.m. each day. Their duties include keeping the rooms and halls clear of debris, to setting up the lunch room tables every day.

Another service group with possibly the most harrowing duties is the bus drivers. Hauling 50-60 students at a time to and from school though was not necessarily a man's job. Women lib infiltrated the bus crew as eight women joined forces with 24 men drivers. When asked if it makes a difference what sex ones bus driver is some students replied, "Women drivers are just as strict as men so it doesn't matter," "Their reactions are as fast as men," and "They seem to be more cautious." But there were still a few prejudiced students who stated, "Women can't drive cars let alone busses."

Even so all the busses made it to school in good weather as well as bad. It is the responsibility of the bus driver to see that the students get to and from school safely. They also play an important part in helping the officials to decide if the weather is too bad to risk the chance of driving. Fifteen days proved too dangerous because of snow and these days allowed many over worked drivers the chance to sleep in and forget the clammoring masses.

Through the school year the behind the scenes people were doing their jobs and kept Highland operating. One questions what school would be like without these much needed people.

"Everyone I have met at Highland really cares."

"Going to Highland has given me an opportunity to make friendships that I might not have made otherwise."

"Some I have at school, others after school. Regardless of where I have met them, they are my friends and they always will be. I'll miss them when I'm gone."

Faces in the Crowd

New faces to some, were well known faces to others. No matter how it was said, no one could miss being part of our ever growing student body and staff.

This section will give everyone a chance to see people they never bumped into between classes and a great opportunity to remember the people with whom they shared the '77-'78 school year.

Left: No matter what the age, all four of these people have something in common. They are all students at Highland High School. Each with their different interests are (clockwise) freshman, Gary Craib; sophomore, Kendon Hawkins; junior, Rick Pitts; and senior, Jay Masters.

Seniors "Take it to the Limit"

The class of "78" passed through their final year with spirit and unity. "Out of all the classes at Highland, I'd say ours was the most spirited. We're a small class, we're close and we stick together," commented senior Cindy Caswell. The senior class consisted of 276 students.

Homecoming was something special. Although their float placed second, WHUT played their theme song "Take it to the Limit" before the game.

The highlight for the senior girls was the victory over the junior girls in the annual "Powder Puff" football game. It was the second year in a row for the girls of "78". Mr. Brown and Mr. Dickerson coached the girls to a victory also for a second year in a row.

The senior robes were dark blue for the males and light blue for the females. Ordering announcements and class keys took place the 19th of October. The class keys and announcements were also a two-tone blue.

Class sponsors were Mr. Ron Brown and Mr. Rich Dickerson. Class officers were Pres.—Mark Smith, Vice Pres.—April Mathias, Sec.—Sam Hasler, and Treas.—Brad Bickel.

Juniors Set New Record at Highland

The magazine sale was the big event for the class of "79" this year. Even though the magazine sales had to be prolonged for one week the juniors raised more than 8,000 dollars.

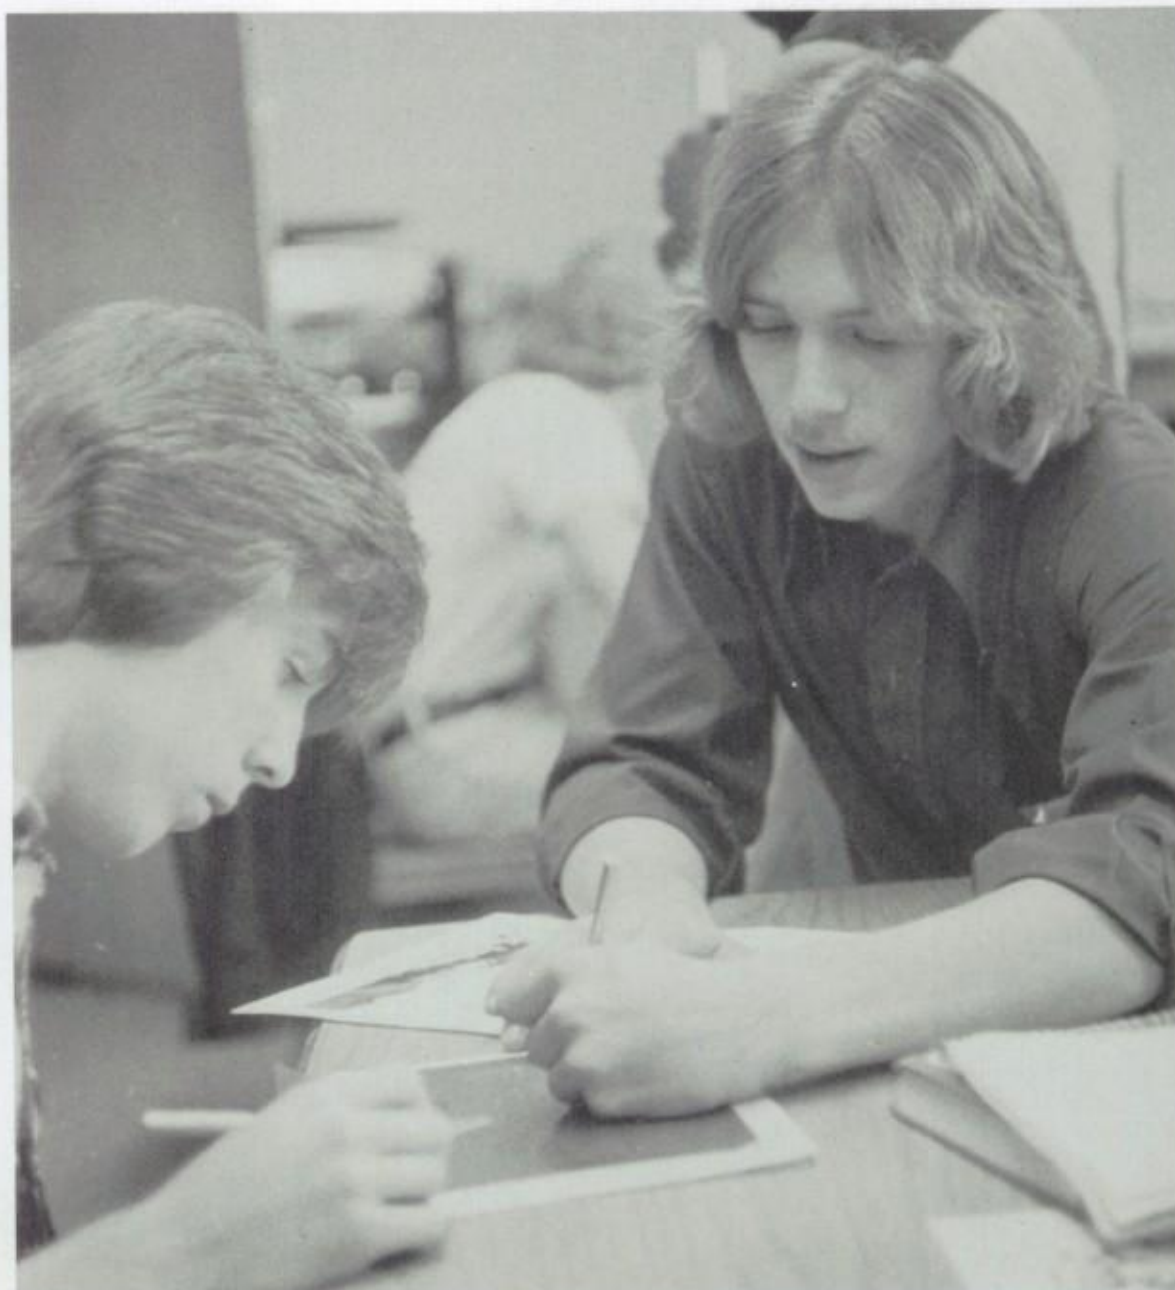

Setting a new record for earning the most money compared to any previous junior class.

The magazine campaign began slowly, but after a few threats from sponsor Mr. Land, the class improved its overall sales. Mr. Land said, "These kids have got the potential to sell these magazines and that's what we're trying to point out to them."

The junior class president, Vicki Fetz felt that the junior class was special because, as she stated, "Everyone gets along so well and everybody likes to support their class and have a good time doing it."

The class officers this year were, Pres. Vicki Fetz; VicePres. Laurie Small; Sec. Christy Gunter; Treas. Claire Bridgewater.

The juniors homecoming float was also victorious. The float theme was, "Our mission is to seek out and destroy the Arabians." This made the class of "79" number one winner for two consecutive years. Cindy Bradford represented the junior class as homecoming princess.

20 Juniors To Graduate

Junior students are now being given the opportunity to graduate under a system called the Seven Semester Waiver of which 20 of the Highland juniors took advantage this year. There are a few procedures that must be completed in this system. First a form is filled out and sent to the State Board in Indianapolis to be looked over. When they either approve or disapprove the form, it is then sent back to the school. As far as it is known, no one has ever been turned down.

The requirements for graduation remain the same as with all other students. The student still needs 33 credits and the required senior class, Government and Citizenship. Some students go as far as taking night classes at the Anderson Vocational School in order to continue with 6 classes in school during the day.

The reason for most students' decision to graduate early is because they have a job or may have their future planned and would like to begin their future education sooner.

Unfortunately, these students will not be here to share their senior year with all their fellow classmates, but hopefully their future will be enhanced by this opportunity.

Sophomores Made Big Decisions

Class rings and jackets were sophomores first project in 77. The sophomores also decided on black and gray for their class colors.

The sophomores were a little more experienced at working on the float this year. The theme of the float was "One small step for Arabians, one giant leap for the Scots," Robyn Johnson represented the sophomores as one of the homecoming princesses.

The sophomore class was represented by Mrs. Bonnie Dickerson and Mr. Richard Pendley. The class was led by class officers, Pres.—Denise Cantanzerite; V.Pres.—Robyn Vaness; Sec.—Betsy Ponsler; and Treas.—Lisa Doty.

"77" Starts Countdown For Freshman

The class of "81" may have not started out to be a shining success, considering homecoming, but all-in-all it ended up to be quite a blast off for the coming years.

Homecoming is the first event in which the freshman participate with the rest of the classes, and it seemed to be a let down when their float came in third place. "I think we could have done much better if we had more cooperation from the kids. We could have even come in first," said one freshman Trudi Parker.

Cooperation may come easy from a smaller group, but trying to work with a class of 501 may not be so simple. The freshman are the largest class yet at H.H.S.

The class seemed to perk up when a visitor from Herff Jones arrived with the new display of class rings. The freshman had a wide variety to choose from. The choice of colors, different type stones and the emblems to jazz up the ring made the process even more inviting.

The class was organized by sponsors, Miss Jane Reams and Mr. James Brizendine. The class officers were, Pres.—Trudi Parker, Vice Pres.—Rod Green, Sec.—Judi Parker, and Treas.—Lori Green.

These new students experienced Highland for the first time and with the changes they and the school were to experience, high school became an exciting new part of their lives.

Education is a gas.

It lights up dark places.

It lifts your sights.

It inflates the ego.

Not everybody likes it.

But nobody goes far without it.

And the more you have,
the farther you can go.

We hope you'll keep going with your education. And, when the time comes, you'll think about Delco-Remy as a good place to work.

In Memory Of ...

Editors Note:

Unfortunately throughout the course of a year, several tragedies are inevitable. This year three students fell victim to unfortunate accidents. In recording a complete record of the 1977-78 school year, these tragedies must not be forgotten. The following response, submitted to the Highlander Staff, we feel appropriately expresses the feelings of the students and all school personnel regarding the loss of their friends and fellow students.

Today a certain pallor, not unlike an ashen shroud, fell over the student body in our high school, for yesterday morning the bodies of two of our members were discovered in their parked car dead of carbon monoxide gas. Only recently another student fell victim to a traffic accident.

Students, shocked by tragedy of friends so recently vital, so enthusiastic, so supportive of their basketball team on Friday, aimlessly strolled the darkened corridors. The energy crisis, commanding reduced power usage, contributed to the feelings of despair and disbelief.

I stood outside the Art Room doors as the bell rang for change of classes.

Dark silhouetted forms glided silently past me in the carpeted halls. No HOOPLA today.

These faceless forms I saw only as souls moving in this plane of existence onward to eternity, what does it mean, I wondered?

One hundred years from now when the sheets of this week's Tartan have crumbled into dust, the pages of the yearbook have become yellowed and fragile, and the ink from the pens of youthful well-wishers had faded, these restless processions of souls will all have joined mysterious condition we call life; they will have laughed and tasted its sweet nectar; they will have wept when they sipped the bitter dregs; they will have searched, too, for the meaning of it all.

Then perhaps they will come to realize this joy, this pain, these struggles are but a moment in God's plan. Perhaps they will see their masses moving always upstream to spawn new hopes, new visions and ever searching for the perfect meaning of being and for the ultimate reunion with their Maker.

Then death will no longer be synonymous with a tear of fear, but with revival of a renewed spirit, a trusting spirit and a life eternal.

Turmoils Heighten Students' Awarenesses . . .

Looking back and reviewing the 1977-78 school year, Highland seems to have had its ups and downs. But by everyone pulling together, the problems such as strikes, probation, snow days, and the energy crisis were overcome.

Such things as convocations, pep sessions, and dances were rare, due to circumstances beyond the school's control. Since cancellations were common, the "Highlander" Student Life section needed constant revision, but hopefully substitutions were implemented wisely.

The Sports section was also a challenge as seasons were shortened or delayed. The ISHAA played a large role in Highlands sports program this year, adding frustration and anticipation to every sport.

A North Central evaluation was a big event, for which Highland teachers had prepared for 3 years.

All in all, the past year, in spite of these out-of-the-ordinary happenings, was one that hopefully everyone will remember.

Upper Right: Custodian, Janet Griffith, does a bit of cleaning while halls are clear.

Left: Due to new construction, students were permitted to park along the side of the school.

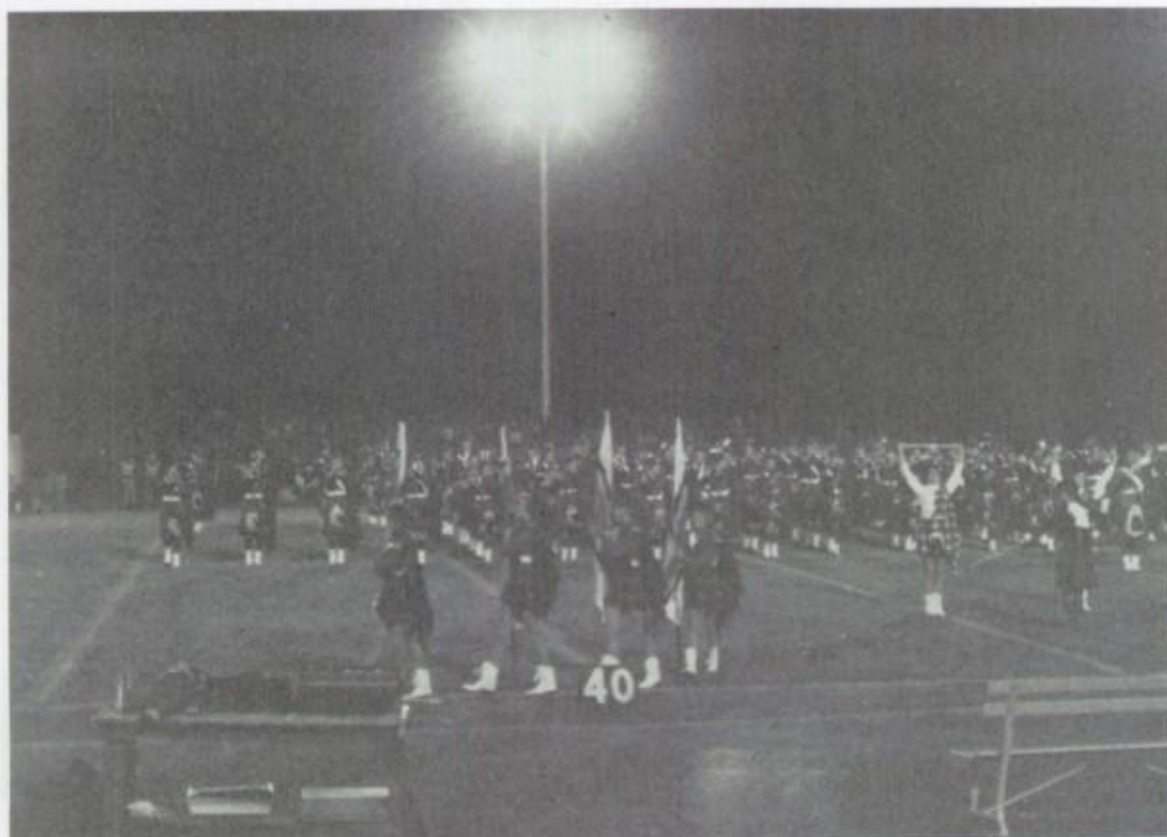

Above: Going home was always the last activity of the day, but was worth waiting for.

Above Right: As the end of the year approached, Senior, Della Hilbolt dreamed of graduation and future endeavor.

Right: One of the miseries of juniors was the annual term paper project.

... As They Grew High On Highland

Above: In the two years as principal of Highland, Mr. Leonard Austin has had many opportunities to meet many important men in our community; one of which was Senator Richard Lugar.

Spring and the closing out of a full year brought several changes ahead for the following years.

Mr. Leonard Austin, accepted Assistant Superintendent of Anderson Schools, which made this his second and last year as Principal of H.H.S. Mr. John Boyer, Assistant Principal will now become principal.

Highland also ended the year searching for a new Athletic Director, when Mr. Bob Fuller resigned.

Now, pondering over the upcoming year, Highland looks for a large number of new freshman, approximately 510, more crowded halls, and hopefully hot meals and lighted hallways.

Top: New construction got underway April 5th.

Young Staff

Many hours were put into the planning and organization of the 1978 Highlander yearbook. There were only two returning staff members, but many of the newcomers were experienced with the area of yearbook publication in Highland's Newswriting class.

Editor, Rose Cornwell, started planning during the summer while attending an Indiana University Journalism Institute.

Mrs. Joan Duc went into her second year as yearbook advisor by going over basics needed to be known by everyone on the staff.

The staff's main money-making project of every year is the selling of advertisement. The yearbook staff also took part in the Spring dance with the crowning of Miss Highlander.

Proves Itself

The 1978 Highlander was printed by Herff Jones in Marceline, Missouri. Optima Medium was used for all body copy, folios, captions, and idents. Headlines were printed in 24, 30, & 36 point Optima Medium and Optima Black. Bordeaux paper was used and the cover was full color artwork, designed by Senior Dale Newkirk.

We also received help from professionals including Larry Glaze—Service Rep.; Rob Bennet—Prestige Portraits; Doyle Fox—Senior Portraits; Anderson Newspaper—photo privileges.

We would like to express our sincere thanks to all the people who helped record Highland's history of 1978.
